SCHUYLER COLFAX, one of the representatives from the State of Indiana, having received a majority of the whole number of votes given, was declared by the Clerk duly elected Speaker of the House of Representatives for the thirty-eighth Congress.

Mr. Colfax was then conducted to the chair by Mr. Cox and Mr. Dawson; and after a brief address to the House, the oath prescribed by the Constitution of the United States, and by the act of July 2, 1862, was administered to him by Mr. Ellihu B. Blair, jr., of Missouri.

The Speaker having announced as the regular order of business the resolution submitted yesterday, by unanimous consent, by Mr. Cox, and laid over under the rule,

The same was read, as follows, viz:

Resolved, That the President of the United States be respectfully and urgently requested to take immediate steps for the exchange of such of our prisoners as are now confined in the prisons of the south, and that he be requested to communicate to this house all correspondence in the War Department with reference to the exchange of prisoners.

Pending the question on agreeing thereto,

Mr. Ellihu B. Washburne submitted the following amendment, viz:

Strike out all after the word "Resolved," and insert: "That this house approve of the constant, statesmanlike, and humane efforts of the administration to secure an exchange of our prisoners now in the hands of the rebels, and that it is hereby recommended that such efforts be continued to secure an exchange of all our prisoners now in southern prisons."

Pending which,

Mr. Washburne moved the previous question; which was seconded, and the main question ordered and put, first, Will the House agree to the said amendment?

And it was decided in the affirmative, { Yeas..... 94

So the resolution, as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. Ellihu B. Washburne moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. Julian gave notice, under the rule, of his intention to move for leave to introduce a bill to repeal the 3d and 4th sections of an act respecting fugitives from justice, and persons escaping from the service of their masters, approved February 12, 1793, and the act to amend and supplementary to the aforesaid act, approved September 18, 1850.

Mr. Bennet gave notice, under the rule, of his intention to move for leave to introduce a bill to settle the title to certain city lots selected for mint purposes in Carson city, Nevada Territory.

The annual message was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Nicolay, his private secretary; which was handed in at the Speaker's table, and by unanimous consent laid before the House by the Speaker, and read as follows, viz:

Fellow-citizens of the Senate and House of Representatives:

Another year of health, and of sufficiently abundant harvests, has passed. For these, and especially for the improved condition of our national affairs, our renewed and profoundest gratitude to God is due.

We remain in peace and friendship with foreign powers.

The efforts of disloyal citizens of the United States to involve us in foreign wars, to aid an inexcusable insurrection, have been unavailing. Her Britannic Majesty's government, as was justly expected, have exercised their authority to prevent the departure of new hostile expeditions from British ports. The Emperor of France has, by a like proceeding, promptly vindicated the neutrality which he proclaimed at the beginning of the contest. Questions of great intricacy and importance have arisen out of the blockade, and other belligerent operations, between the government and several of the maritime powers, but they have been discussed, and, as far as was possible, accommodated in a spirit of frankness, justice, and mutual good will. It is especially gratifying that our prize courts, by the impartiality of their adjudications, have commanded the respect and confidence of maritime powers.

The supplemental treaty between the United States and Great Britain for the suppression of the African slave trade, made on the 17th day of February last, has been duly ratified and carried into execution. It is believed that, so far as American ports and American citizens are concerned, that inhuman and odious traffic has been brought to an end.

I shall submit, for the consideration of the Senate, a convention for the adjustment of possessory claims in Washington Territory, arising out of the treaty of the 15th June, 1846, between the United States and Great Britain, and which have been the source of some disquiet among the citizens of that now rapidly improving part of the country.

A novel and important question, involving the extent of the maritime jurisdiction of Spain in the waters which surround the island of Cuba, has been debated without reaching an agreement, and it is proposed, in an amicable spirit, to refer it to the arbitrament of a friendly power. A convention for that purpose will be submitted to the Senate.

I have thought it proper, subject to the approval of the Senate, to concur with the interested commercial powers in an arrangement for the liquidation of the Scheldt dues upon the principles which have been heretofore adopted in regard to the imposts upon navigation in the waters of Denmark.

The long-pending controversy between this government and that of Chili, touching the seizure at Sitana, in Peru, by Chilian officers, of a large amount in treasure belonging to citizens of the United States, has been brought to a close by the award of his Majesty the king of the Belgians, to whose arbitration the question was referred by the parties. The subject was thoroughly and patiently examined by that justly respected magistrate, and although the sum awarded to the claimants may not have been as large as they expected, there is no reason to distrust the wisdom of his Majesty's decision. That decision was promptly complied with by Chili, when intelligence in regard to it reached that country.

The joint commission, under the act of the last session, for carrying into effect the convention with Peru on the subject of claims, has been organized at Lima, and is engaged in the business intrusted to it.

Difficulties concerning inter-oceanic transit through Nicaragua are in course of amicable adjustment.

In conformity with principles set forth in my last annual message, I have received a representative from the United States of Colombia, and have accredited a minister to that republic.

Incidents occurring in the progress of our civil war have forced upon my attention the uncertain state of international questions touching the rights of foreigners in this country and of United States citizens abroad. In regard to some governments these rights are at least partially defined by treaties. In no instance, however, is it expressly stipulated that, in the event of civil war, a foreigner residing in this country, within the lines of the insurgents, is to be exempted from the rule which classes him as a belligerent, in whose behalf the government of his country cannot expect any privileges or immunities distinct from that character. I regret to say, however, that such claims have been put forward, and, in some instances, in behalf of foreigners who have lived in the United States the greater part of their lives.

There is reason to believe that many persons born in foreign countries, who have declared their intention to become citizens, or who have been fully naturalized, have evaded the military duty required of them by denying the fact, and thereby throwing upon the government the burden of proof. It has been found difficult or impracticable to obtain this proof from the want of guides to the proper sources of information. These might be supplied by requiring clerks of courts, where declarations of intention may be made or naturalizations effected, to send, periodically, lists of the names of the persons naturalized, or declaring their intention to become citizens, to the Secretary of the Interior, in whose department those names might be arranged and printed for general information.

There is also reason to believe that foreigners frequently become citizens of the United States for the sole purpose of evading duties imposed by the laws of their native countries, to which, on becoming naturalized here, they at once repair, and, though never returning to the United States, they still claim the interposition of this government as citizens. Many altercations and great prejudices have heretofore arisen out of this abuse. It is, therefore, submitted to your serious consideration. It might be advisable to fix a limit, beyond which no citizen of the United States residing abroad may claim the interposition of his government.

The right of suffrage has often been assumed and exercised by aliens, under pretences of naturalization, which they have disavowed when drafted into the military service. I submit the expediency of such an amendment of the law as will make the fact of voting an estoppel against any plea of exemption from military service, or other civil obligation, on the ground of alienage.

In common with other western powers, our relations with Japan have been brought into serious jeopardy, through the perverse opposition of the hereditary aristocracy of the empire to the enlightened and liberal policy of the Tycoon, designed to bring the country into the society of nations. It is hoped, although not with entire confidence, that these difficulties may be peacefully overcome. I ask your attention to the claim of the minister residing there for the damages he sustained in the destruction by fire of the residence of the legation at Yedo.

Satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Emperor of Russia, which, it is believed, will result in effecting a continuous line of telegraph through that empire from our Pacific coast.

I recommend to your favorable consideration the subject of an international telegraph across the Atlantic ocean; and also of a telegraph between this capital and the national forts along the Atlantic sea-board and the Gulf of Mexico. Such communications, established with any reasonable outlay, would be economical as well as effective aids to the diplomatic, military, and naval service.

The consular system of the United States, under the enactments of the last Congress, begins to be self-sustaining; and there is reason to hope that it may become entirely so, with the increase of trade which will ensue whenever peace is restored. Our ministers abroad have been faithful in defending American rights. In protecting commercial interests, our consuls have necessarily had to encounter increased labors and responsibilities, growing out of the war. These they have, for the most part, met and discharged with zeal and efficiency. This acknowledgment justly includes those consuls who, residing in Morocco, Egypt, Turkey, Japan, China, and other Oriental countries, are charged with complex functions and extraordinary powers.

The condition of the several organized Territories is generally satisfactory, although Indian disturbances in New Mexico have not been entirely suppressed. The mineral resources of Colorado, Nevada, Idaho, New Mexico, and Arizona, are proving far richer than has been heretofore understood. I lay before you a communication on this subject from the governor of New Mexico. I again submit to your consideration the expediency of establishing a system for the encouragement of immigration. Although this source of national wealth and strength is again flowing with greater freedom than for several years before the insurrection occurred, there is still a great deficiency of laborers in every field of industry, especially in agriculture and in our mines, as well of iron and coal as of the precious metals. While the demand for labor is much increased here, tens of thousands of persons, destitute of remunerative occupation, are thronging our foreign consulates, and offering to emigrate to the United States if essential, but very cheap, assistance can be afforded them. It is easy to see that, under the sharp discipline of civil war, the nation is beginning a new life. This noble effort demands the aid, and ought to receive the attention and support, of the government.

Injuries, unforeseen by the government and unintended, may, in some cases, have been inflicted on the subjects or citizens of foreign countries, both at sea and on land, by persons in the service of the United States. As this government expects redress from other powers when similar injuries are inflicted by persons in their service upon citizens of the United States, we must be prepared to do justice to foreigners. If the existing judicial tribunals are inadequate to this purpose, a special court may be authorized, with power to hear and decide such claims of the character referred to as may have arisen under treaties and the public law. Conventions for adjusting the claims by joint commission have been proposed to some governments, but no definitive answer to the proposition has yet been received from any.

In the course of the session I shall probably have occasion to request you to provide indemnification to claimants where decrees of restitution have been rendered, and damages awarded by admiralty courts; and in other cases, where this government may be acknowledged to be liable in principle, and where the amount of that liability has been ascertained by an informal arbitration.

The proper officers of the treasury have deemed themselves required, by the law of the United States upon the subject, to demand a tax upon the incomes of foreign consuls in this country. While such a demand may not, in strictness, be in derogation of public law, or perhaps of any existing treaty between the United States and a foreign country, the expediency of so far modifying the act as to exempt from tax the income of such consuls as are not citizens of the United States, derived from the emoluments of their office, or from property not situated in the United States, is submitted to your serious consideration. I make this suggestion upon the ground that a comity which ought to be reciprocated exempts our consuls, in all other countries, from taxation to the extent thus indicated. The United States, I think, ought not to be exceptionably illiberal to international trade and commerce.

The operations of the treasury during the last year have been successfully conducted. The enactment by Congress of a national banking law has proved a valuable support of the public credit; and the general legislation in relation to loans has fully answered the expectations of its favorers. Some amendments may be required to perfect existing laws, but no change in their principles or general scope is believed to be needed.

Since these measures have been in operation, all demands on the treasury, including the pay of the army and navy, have been promptly met and fully satisfied. No considerable body of troops, it is believed, were ever more amply provided, and more liberally and punctually paid ; and it may be added, that by no people were the burdens incident to a great war ever more cheerfully borne.

The receipts during the year from all sources, including loans and balance in the treasury at its commencement, were $901,125,674 86, and the aggregate disbursements $895,796,630 65, leaving a balance on the 1st of July, 1863, of $5,329,044 21. Of the receipts there were derived from customs $69,059,642 40; from internal revenue, $37,640,787 95; from direct tax, $1,485,103 61; from lands, $167,617 17; from miscellaneous sources, $3,046,615 35; and from loans, $776,682,361 57; making the aggregate, $901,125,674 86. Of the disbursements there were for the civil service, $23,253,922 08; for pensions and Indians, $4,216,520 79; for interest on public debt, $24,729,846 51; for the War Department, $599,298,600 83; for the Navy Department, $63,211,105 27; for payment of funded and temporary debt, $181,086,635 07; making the aggregate, $895,796,630 65, and leaving the balance of $5,329,044 21. But the payment of funded and temporary debt, having been made from moneys borrowed during the year, must be regarded as merely nominal payments, and the moneys borrowed to make them as merely nominal receipts; and their amount, $181,086,635 07, should therefore be deducted both from receipts and disbursements. This being done, there remains as actual receipts $720,039,039 79, and the actual disbursements $714,709,995 58, leaving the balance as already stated.

The actual receipts and disbursements for the first quarter, and the estimated receipts and disbursements for the remaining three quarters of the current fiscal year, 1864, will be shown in detail by the report of the Secretary of the Treasury, to which I invite your attention. It is sufficient to say here that it is not believed that actual results will exhibit a state of the finances less favorable to the country than the estimates of that officer heretofore submitted ; while it is confidently expected that at the close of the year both disbursements and debt will be found very considerably less than has been anticipated.

The report of the Secretary of War is a document of great interest. It consists of—

1. The military operations of the year, detailed in the report of the general-in-chief.
2. The organization of colored persons into the war service.
3. The exchange of prisoners, fully set forth in the letter of General Hitchcock.
4. The operations under the act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, detailed in the report of the Provost Marshal General.
5. The organization of the invalid corps ; and,
6. The operation of the several departments of the Quartermaster General, Commissary General, Paymaster General, Chief of Engineers, Chief of Ordnance, and Surgeon General.

It has appeared impossible to make a valuable summary of this report except such as would be too extended for this place, and hence I content myself by asking your careful attention to the report itself.

The duties devolving on the naval branch of the service during the year, and throughout the whole of this unhappy contest, have been discharged with fidelity and eminent success. The extensive blockade has been constantly increasing in efficiency, as the navy has expanded ; yet on so long a line it has so far been impossible to entirely suppress illicit trade. From returns received at the Navy Department it appears that more than one thousand vessels have been captured since the blockade was instituted, and that the value of prizes already sent in for adjudication amounts to over thirteen millions of dollars.

The naval force of the United States consists at this time of five hundred and eighty-eight vessels, completed and in the course of completion, and of these seventy-five are iron-clad or armored steamers. The events of the war give an increased interest and importance to the navy which will probably extend beyond the war itself.

The armored vessels in our navy completed and in service, or which are under contract and approaching completion, are believed to exceed in number those of any other power. But while these may be relied upon for harbor defence and coast service, others of greater strength and capacity will be necessary for cruising purposes, and to maintain our rightful position on the ocean.

The change that has taken place in naval vessels and naval warfare since the introduction of steam as a motive power for ships-of-war demands either a corresponding change in some of our existing navy yards, or the establishment of new ones, for the construction and necessary repair of modern naval vessels. No inconsiderable embarrassment, delay, and public injury have been experienced from the want of such governmental establishments. The necessity of such a navy yard, so furnished, at some suitable place upon the Atlantic seaboard, has on repeated occasions been brought to the attention of Congress by the Navy Department, and is again presented in the report of the Secretary which accompanies this communication. I think it my duty to invite your special attention to this subject, and also to that of establishing a yard and depot for naval purposes upon one of the western rivers. A naval force has been created on those interior waters, and under many disadvantages, within little more than two years, exceeding in numbers the whole naval force of the country at the commencement of the present administration. Satisfactory and important as have been the performances of the heroic men of the navy at this interesting period, they are scarcely more wonderful than the success of our mechanics and artisans in the production of war vessels which has created a new form of naval power.

Our country has advantages superior to any other nation in our resources of iron and timber, with inexhaustible quantities of fuel in the immediate vicinity of both, and all available and in close proximity to navigable waters. Without the advantage of public works the resources of the nation have been developed and its power displayed in the construction of a navy of such magnitude which has, at the very period of its creation, rendered signal service to the Union.

The increase of the number of seamen in the public service, from seven thousand five hundred men, in the spring of 1861, to about thirty-four thousand at the present time, has been accomplished without special legislation, or extraordinary bounties to promote that increase. It has been found, however, that the operation of the draft, with the high bounties paid for army recruits, is beginning to affect injuriously the naval service, and will, if not corrected, be likely to impair its efficiency, by detaching seamen from their proper vocation and inducing them to enter the army. I therefore respectfully suggest that Congress might aid both the army and naval services by a definite provision on this subject, which would at the same time be equitable to the communities more especially interested.

I commend to your consideration the suggestions of the Secretary of the Navy in regard to the policy of fostering and training seamen, and also the education of officers and engineers for the naval service. The Naval Academy is rendering signal service in preparing midshipmen for the highly responsible duties which in after life they will be required to perform. In order that the country should not be deprived of the proper quota of educated officers, for which legal provision has been made at the naval school, the vacancies caused by the neglect or omission to make nominations from the States in insurrection have been filled by the Secretary of the Navy. The school is now more full and complete than at any former period, and in every respect entitled to the favorable consideration of Congress.

During the past fiscal year the financial condition of the Post Office Department has been one of increasing prosperity, and I am gratified in being able to state that the actual postal revenue has nearly equalled the entire expenditures ; the latter amounting to $11,314,206 84, and the former to $11,163,789 59, leaving a deficiency of but $150,417 25. In 1860, the year immediately preceding the rebellion, the deficiency amounted to $5,656,705 49, the postal receipts of that year being $2,645,722 19 less than those of 1863. The decrease since 1860 in the annual amount of transportation has been only about 25 per cent., but the annual expenditure on account of the same has been reduced 35 per cent. It is manifest, therefore, that the Post Office Department may become self-sustaining in a few years, even with the restoration of the whole service.

The international conference of postal delegates from the principal countries of Europe and America, which was called at the suggestion of the Postmaster General, met at Paris on the 11th of May last, and concluded its deliberations on the 8th of June. The principles established by the conference as best adapted to facilitate postal intercourse between nations, and as the basis of future postal conventions, inaugurate a general system of uniform international charges, at reduced rates of postage, and cannot fail to produce beneficial results.

I refer you to the report of the Secretary of the Interior, which is herewith laid before you, for useful and varied information in relation to the public lands, Indian affairs, patents, pensions, and other matters of public concern pertaining to his department.

The quantity of land disposed of during the last and the first quarter of the present fiscal years was three million eight hundred and forty-one thousand five hundred and forty-nine acres, of which one hundred and sixty-one thousand nine hundred and eleven acres were sold for cash, one million four hundred and fifty-six thousand five hundred and fourteen acres were taken up under the homestead law, and the residue disposed of under laws granting lands for military bounties, for railroad and other purposes. It also appears that the sale of the public lands is largely on the increase.

It has long been a cherished opinion of some of our wisest statesmen that the people of the United States had a higher and more enduring interest in the early settlement and substantial cultivation of the public lands than in the amount of direct revenue to be derived from the sale of them. This opinion has had a controlling influence in shaping legislation upon the subject of our national domain. I may cite, as evidence of this, the liberal measures adopted in reference to actual settlers ; the grant to the States of the overflowed lands within their limits in order to their being reclaimed and rendered fit for cultivation ; the grants to railway companies of alternate sections of land upon the contemplated lines of their roads which, when completed, will so largely multiply the facilities for reaching our distant possessions. This policy has received its most signal and beneficent illustration in the recent enactment granting homesteads to actual settlers. Since the first day of January last the beforementioned quantity of one million four hundred and fifty-six thousand five hundred and fourteen acres of land have been taken up under its provisions. This fact, and the amount of sales, furnish gratifying evidence of increasing settlement upon the public lands, notwithstanding the great struggle in which the energies of the nation have been engaged, and which has required so large a withdrawal of our citizens from their accustomed pursuits. I cordially concur in the recommendation of the Secretary of the Interior, suggesting a modification of the act in favor of those engaged in the military and naval service of the United States. I doubt not that Congress will cheerfully adopt such measures as will, without essentially changing the general features of the system, secure, to the greatest practicable extent, its benefits to those who have left their homes in the defence of the country in this arduous crisis.

I invite your attention to the views of the Secretary as to the propriety of raising, by appropriate legislation, a revenue from the mineral lands of the United States.

The measures provided at your last session for the removal of certain Indian tribes have been carried into effect. Sundry treaties have been negotiated, which will, in due time, be submitted for the constitutional action of the Senate. They contain stipulations for extinguishing the possessory rights of the Indians to large and valuable tracts of land. It is hoped that the effect of these treaties will result in the establishment of permanent friendly relations with such of these tribes as have been brought into frequent and bloody collision with our outlying settlements and emigrants. Sound policy and our imperative duty to these wards of the government demand our anxious and constant attention to their material well-being, to their progress in the arts of civilization, and, above all, to that moral training which, under the blessing of Divine Providence, will confer upon them the elevated and sanctifying influences, the hopes and consolations of the Christian faith.

I suggested in my last annual message the propriety of remodelling our Indian system. Subsequent events have satisfied me of its necessity. The details set forth in the report of the Secretary evince the urgent need for immediate legislative action.

I commend the benevolent institutions established or patronized by the government in this District to your generous and fostering care.

The attention of Congress, during the last session, was engaged to some extent with a proposition for enlarging the water communication between the Mississippi river and the northeastern seaboard, which proposition, however, failed for the time. Since then, upon a call of the greatest respectability, a convention has been held at Chicago upon the same subject, a summary of whose views is contained in a memorial addressed to the President and Congress, and which I now have the honor to lay before you. That this interest is one which, ere long, will force its own way, I do not entertain a doubt, while it is submitted entirely to your wisdom as to what can be done now. Augmented interest is given to this subject by the actual commencement of work upon the Pacific railroad, under auspices so favorable to rapid progress and completion. The enlarged navigation becomes a palpable need to the great road.

I transmit the second annual report of the Commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, asking your attention to the developments in that vital interest of the nation.

When Congress assembled a year ago the war had already lasted nearly twenty months, and there had been many conflicts on both land and sea, with varying results. The rebellion had been pressed back into reduced limits; yet the tone of public feeling and opinion, at home and abroad, was not satisfactory. With other signs, the popular elections, then just past, indicated uneasiness among ourselves, while amid much that was cold and menacing the kindest words coming from Europe were uttered in accents of pity, that we were too blind to surrender a hopeless cause. Our commerce was suffering greatly by a few armed vessels built upon and furnished from foreign shores, and we were threatened with such additions from the same quarter as would sweep our trade from the sea and raise our blockade. We had failed to elicit from European governments anything hopeful upon this subject. The preliminary emancipation proclamation, issued in September, was running its assigned period to the beginning of the new year. A month later the final proclamation came, including the announcement that colored men of suitable condition would be received into the war service. The policy of emancipation, and of employing black soldiers, gave to the future a new aspect, about which hope, and fear, and doubt contended in uncertain conflict. According to our political system, as a matter of civil administration, the general government had no lawful power to effect emancipation in any State, and for a long time it had been hoped that the rebellion could be suppressed without resorting to it as a military measure. It was all the while deemed possible that the necessity for it might come, and that if it should, the crisis of the contest would then be presented. It came, and, as was anticipated, it was followed by dark and doubtful days. Eleven months having now passed, we are permitted to take another review. The rebel borders are pressed still further back, and by the complete opening of the Mississippi the country dominated by the rebellion is divided into distinct parts, with no practical communication between them. Tennessee and Arkansas have been substantially cleared of insurgent control, and influential citizens in each, owners of slaves and advocates of slavery at the beginning of the rebellion, now declare openly for emancipation in their respective States. Of those States not included in the emancipation proclamation, Maryland and Missouri, neither of which three years ago would tolerate any restraint upon the extension of slavery into new territories, only dispute now as to the best mode of removing it within their own limits.

Of those who were slaves at the beginning of the rebellion, full one hundred thousand are now in the United States military service, about one-half of which number actually bear arms in the ranks; thus giving the double advantage of taking so much labor from the insurgent cause, and supplying the places which otherwise must be filled with so many white men. So far as tested, it is difficult to say they are not as good soldiers as any. No servile insurrection, or tendency to violence or cruelty, has marked the measures of emancipation and arming the blacks. These measures have been much discussed in foreign countries, and contemporary with such discussion the tone of public sentiment there is much improved. At home the same measures have been fully discussed, supported, criticised, and denounced, and the annual elections following are highly encouraging to those whose official duty it is to bear the country through this great trial. Thus we have the new reckoning. The crisis which threatened to divide the friends of the Union is past.

Looking now to the present and future, and with reference to a resumption of the national authority within the States wherein that authority has been suspended, I have thought fit to issue a proclamation, a copy of which is herewith transmitted. On examination of this proclamation it will appear, as is believed, that nothing will be attempted beyond what is amply justified by the Constitution. True, the form of an oath is given, but no man is coerced to take it. The man is only promised a pardon in case he voluntarily takes the oath. The Constitution authorizes the Executive to grant or withhold the pardon at his own absolute discretion; and this includes the power to grant on terms, as is fully established by judicial and other authorities.

It is also proffered that if, in any of the States named, a State government shall be, in the mode prescribed, set up, such government shall be recognized and guarantied by the United States, and that under it the State shall, on the constitutional conditions, be protected against invasion and domestic violence. The constitutional obligation of the United States to guaranty to every State in the Union a republican form of government, and to protect the State, in the cases stated, is explicit and full. But why tender the benefits of this provision only to a State government set up in this particular way? This section of the Constitution contemplates a case wherein the element within a State, favorable to republican government, in the Union, may be too feeble for an opposite and hostile element external to or even within the State; and such are precisely the cases with which we are now dealing.

An attempt to guarantee and protect a revived State government, constructed in whole, or in preponderating part, from the very element against whose hostility and violence it is to be protected, is simply absurd. There must be a test by which to separate the opposing elements, so as to build only from the sound; and that test is a sufficiently liberal one which accepts as sound whoever will make a sworn recantation of his former unsoundness.

But if it be proper to require, as a test of admission to the political body, an oath of allegiance to the Constitution of the United States, and to the Union under it, why also to the laws and proclamations in regard to slavery? Those laws and proclamations were enacted and put forth for the purpose of aiding in the suppression of the rebellion. To give them their fullest effect, there had to be a pledge for their maintenance. In my judgment they have aided, and will further aid, the cause for which they were intended. To now abandon them would be not only to relinquish a lever of power, but would also be a cruel and an astounding breach of faith. I may add at this point, that while I remain in my present position I shall not attempt to retract or modify the emancipation proclamation; nor shall I return to slavery any person who is free by the terms of that proclamation, or by any of the acts of Congress. For these and other reasons it is thought best that support of these measures shall be included in the oath; and it is believed the Executive may lawfully claim it in return for pardon and restoration of forfeited rights, which he has clear constitutional power to withhold altogether, or grant upon the terms which he shall deem wisest for the public interest. It should be observed, also, that this part of the oath is subject to the modifying and abrogating power of legislation and supreme judicial decision.

The proposed acquiescence of the national Executive in any reasonable temporary State arrangement for the freed people is made with the view of possibly modifying the confusion and destitution which must, at best, attend all classes by a total revolution of labor throughout whole States. It is hoped that the already deeply afflicted people in those States may be somewhat more ready to give up the cause of their affliction, if, to this extent, this vital matter be left to themselves; while no power of the national Executive to prevent an abuse is abridged by the proposition.

The suggestion in the proclamation as to maintaining the political framework of the States on what is called reconstruction, is made in the hope that it may do good without danger of harm. It will save labor, and avoid great confusion.

But why any proclamation now upon this subject? This question is beset with the conflicting views that the step might be delayed too long or be taken too soon. In some States the elements for resumption seem ready for action, but remain inactive, apparently for want of a rallying point—a plan of action. Why shall A adopt the plan of B, rather than B that of A? And if A and B should agree, how can they know but that the general government here will reject their plan? By the proclamation a plan is presented which may be accepted by them as a rallying point, and which they are assured in advance will not be rejected here. This may bring them to act sooner than they otherwise would.

The objections to a premature presentation of a plan by the national Executive consists in the danger of committals on points which could be more safely left to further developments. Care has been taken to so shape the document as to avoid embarrassments from this source. Saying that, on certain terms, certain classes will be pardoned, with rights restored, it is not said that other classes, or other terms, will never be included. Saying that reconstruction will be accepted if presented in a specified way, it is not said it will never be accepted in any other way.

The movements, by State action, for emancipation in several of the States, not included in the emancipation proclamation, are matters of profound gratulation. And while I do not repeat in detail what I have heretofore so earnestly urged upon this subject, my general views and feelings remain unchanged; and I trust that Congress will omit no fair opportunity of aiding these important steps to a great consummation.

In the midst of other cares, however important, we must not lose sight of the fact that the war power is still our main reliance. To that power alone can we look, yet for a time, to give confidence to the people in the contested regions, that the insurgent power will not again overrun them. Until that confidence shall be established, little can be done anywhere for what is called reconstruction. Hence our chiefest care must still be directed to the army and navy, who have thus far borne their harder part so nobly and well. And it may be esteemed fortunate that in giving the greatest efficiency to these indispensable arms, we do also honorably recognize the gallant men, from commander to sentinel, who compose them, and to whom, more than to others, the world must stand indebted for the home of freedom disenthralled, regenerated, enlarged, and perpetuated.

DECEMBER 8, 1863.

PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, in and by the Constitution of the United States, it is provided that the President "shall have power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment;" and

Whereas a rebellion now exists whereby the loyal State governments of several States have for a long time been subverted, and many persons have committed and are now guilty of treason against the United States; and

Whereas, with reference to said rebellion and treason, laws have been enacted by Congress, declaring forfeitures and confiscation of property and liberation of slaves, all upon terms and conditions therein stated, and also declaring that the President was thereby authorized at any time thereafter, by proclamation, to extend to persons who may have participated in the existing rebellion, in any State or part thereof, pardon and amnesty, with such exceptions and at such times and on such conditions as he may deem expedient for the public welfare; and

Whereas the congressional declaration for limited and conditional pardon accords with well-established judicial exposition of the pardoning power; and

Whereas, with reference to said rebellion, the President of the United States has issued several proclamations, with provisions in regard to the liberation of slaves; and

Whereas it is now desired by some persons heretofore engaged in said rebellion to resume their allegiance to the United States, and to reinaugurate loyal State governments within and for their respective States: Therefore,

I, Abraham Lincoln, President of the United States, do proclaim, declare, and make known to all persons who have, directly or by implication, participated in the existing rebellion, except as hereinafter excepted, that a full pardon is hereby granted to them and each of them, with restoration of all rights of property, except as to slaves, and in property cases where rights of third parties shall have intervened, and upon the condition that every such person shall take and subscribe an oath, and thenceforward keep and maintain said oath inviolate; and which oath shall be registered for permanent preservation, and shall be of the tenor and effect following, to wit:

"I, _____, do solemnly swear, in presence of Almighty God, that I will henceforth faithfully support, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States, and the union of the States thereunder; and that I will, in like manner, abide by and faithfully support all acts of Congress passed during the existing rebellion with reference to slaves, so long and so far as not repealed, modified, or held void by Congress, or by decision of the Supreme Court; and that I will, in like manner, abide by and faithfully support all proclamations of the President made during the existing rebellion having reference to slaves, so long and so far as not modified or declared void by decision of the Supreme Court. So help me God."

The persons excepted from the benefits of the foregoing provisions are all who are, or shall have been, civil or diplomatic officers or agents of the so-called confederate government; all who have left judicial stations under the United States to aid the rebellion; all who are, or shall have been, military or naval officers of said so-called confederate government above the rank of colonel in the army, or of lieutenant in the navy; all who left seats in the United States Congress to aid the rebellion; all who resigned commissions in the army or navy of the United States, and afterwards aided the rebellion; and all who have engaged in any way in treating colored persons, or white persons in charge of such, otherwise than lawfully as prisoners of war, and which persons may have been found in the United States service as soldiers, seamen, or in any other capacity.

And I do further proclaim, declare, and make known, that whenever, in any of the States of Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia, Virginia, Florida, South Carolina, and North Carolina, a number of persons, not less than one-tenth in number of the votes cast in such State at the presidential election of the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty, each having taken the oath aforesaid and not having since violated it, and being a qualified voter by the election law of the State existing immediately before the so-called act of secession, and excluding all others, shall re-establish a State government which shall be republican, and in nowise contravening said oath, such shall be recognized as the true government of the State, and the State shall receive thereunder the benefits of the constitutional provision which declares that "The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and, on application of the legislature, or the executive, (when the legislature cannot be convened,) against domestic violence."

And I do further proclaim, declare, and make known that any provision which may be adopted by such State government in relation to the freed people of such State, which shall recognize and declare their permanent freedom, provide for their education, and which may yet be consistent, as a temporary arrangement, with their present condition as a laboring, landless, and homeless class, will not be objected to by the national Executive. And it is suggested as not improper, that, in constructing a loyal State government in any State, the name of the State, the boundary, the subdivisions, the constitution, and the general code of laws, as before the rebellion, be maintained, subject only to the modifications made necessary by the conditions hereinbefore stated, and such others, if any, not contravening said conditions, and which may be deemed expedient by those framing the new State government.

To avoid misunderstanding, it may be proper to say that this proclamation, so far as it relates to State governments, has no reference to States wherein loyal State governments have all the while been maintained. And for the same reason, it may be proper to further say, that whether members sent to Congress from any State shall be admitted to seats constitutionally, rests exclusively with the respective Houses, and not to any extent with the Executive. And still further, that this proclamation is intended to present the people of the States wherein the national authority has been suspended, and loyal State governments have been subverted, a mode in and by which the national authority and loyal State governments may be re-established within said States, or in any of them; and, while the mode presented is the best the Executive can suggest, with his present impressions, it must not be understood that no other possible mode would be acceptable.

Given under my hand, at the city of Washington, the eighth day of December, A. D. one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, and [L. S.] of the independence of the United States of America the eighty-eighth.

Mr. Ganson introduced a bill (H. R. 32) to regulate the sessions of the circuit and district courts for the northern district of New York, and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. Samuel F. Miller submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz :

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be requested to inquire into the justice and expediency of so amending the enrolment act as to place all persons enrolled under said act in one class, from which class all drafts that are now ordered or shall hereafter be ordered shall be made, and that the said committee have leave to report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Denison submitted the following resolution, viz :

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to report a bill to increase the pay of all private soldiers now in the service of the United States to thirty dollars per month ; and in all cases where a soldier has a family, to pay one-half of said sum to his family.

The same having been read,

Mr. Ellihu B. Washburne submitted the following amendment, viz: Strike out the word "report," and insert in lieu thereof the words "inquire into the expediency of reporting."

And the question being put, Will the House agree thereto?

It was decided in the affirmative.

The resolution as amended was then agreed to.

Mr. Finck submitted the following resolution; and debate arising thereon, it was laid over under the rule, viz :

Whereas, in the opinion of this house, the federal government is invested by the Constitution of the United States with all necessary power and authority to suppress any resistance to the due execution of the laws thereof, and to employ the army and navy in aid of the civil authority to disperse all armed resistance to the rightful power and jurisdiction of the United States ; and whereas, in the judgment of this house, the army and navy cannot be rightfully used to subjugate and hold as conquered territory any of the States of this Union; Therefore,

Be it resolved, That in this national emergency Congress will forego all feeling of mere passion or resentment, and will recollect only its duty to the country; that this war should not be waged on our part in any spirit of oppression, nor in any spirit of conquest or subjugation, nor for the purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of the States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution and preserve the Union, with all the dignity, equality, and rights of the several States unimpaired; and as soon as these objects are attained the war ought to cease.

Mr. Cox submitted the following resolution, and moved the previous question thereon, viz :

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be directed to communicate to this house the report made by Major General George B. McClellan concerning the organization and operations of the army of the Potomac while under his command, and of all army operations while he was commander-in-chief.

The said resolution was then laid over one day, under the rule.

Mr. Harding submitted the following resolution, viz :

Resolved, That the Union has not been dissolved, and that whenever the rebellion in any one of the seceded States shall be put down and subdued, either by force of the federal arms or by the voluntary submission of the people of such State to the authority of the Constitution, then such State will be thereby restored to all its rights and privileges as a State of the Union, under the Constitution of such State and the Constitution of the United States, including the right to regulate, order, and control its own domestic institutions according to the constitution and laws of such State, free from all congressional or executive control or dictation.

The same having been read,

Mr. Harding moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising on the resolution, it was laid over under the rule.

Mr. Grider submitted the following resolution, viz :

Resolved, That the Committee of Claims be instructed to report a bill, at their earliest convenience, providing a commission or agency to ascertain and assess the damage done to loyal citizens by the army of the United States where no pay has been received nor sufficient and legal vouchers given the citizens upon which pay can be had and received.

The same having been read,

On motion of Mr. Stevens, it was amended by striking out the word "report," and inserting in lieu thereof the words "inquire into the expediency of reporting."

The resolution as amended was then agreed to.

Mr. Wadsworth submitted the following resolution, viz :

Resolved, That the powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution nor prohibited by it to the States are reserved to the States respectively, or to the people, and the federal Executive can neither, directly nor indirectly, exercise any of the powers thus reserved or lawfully restrict or obstruct the exercise thereof by the people.

The same having been read,

Mr. Wadsworth moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising on the resolution, it was laid over under the rule.

Mr. Voorhees submitted a preamble and resolution, which he subsequently modified to read as follows, and which were read, considered, and agreed to, viz :

Whereas the increased prices attached to all the commodities of life render the expense of living and of supporting families almost if not quite double what sufficed for such purposes at the commencement of the war in which we are now engaged : Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of preparing and reporting, at as early a day as practicable, a bill providing for the increase of the pay of the white private soldiers now or hereafter in the army of the United States to the sum of twenty-five dollars per month ; also providing for the increase of the pay of all commissioned officers and musicians now or hereafter in said army forty per cent. on the amount now paid them by law ; and also providing for the payment to the soldiers who have heretofore been enlisted, including those who have been honorably discharged by reason of disability or other cause, of an amount of bounty money equal to the highest amount now being paid by the government for volunteers.

Mr. Holman submitted the following resolutions, viz :

Resolved, That the doctrine, recently announced, that the States in which an armed insurrection has existed against the federal government have ceased to be States of the Union, and shall be held, on the ultimate defeat of that insurrection, as Territories or subjugated provinces, and governed as such by the absolute will of Congress and the federal Executive, or restored to the Union on conditions unknown to the Constitution of the United States, ought to be rebuked and condemned as manifestly unjust to the loyal citizens of those States, tending to prolong the war and to confirm the treasonable theory of secession, and if carried into effect must greatly endanger the public liberty and the constitutional powers and rights of all of the States, by centralizing and consolidating the powers of the government, State and national, in the federal Executive.

Resolved, That the only object of the war ought to be to subjugate the armed insurrection which for the time being suspends the proper relations of certain States with the federal government, and to re-establish the supremacy of the Constitution; and the loyal citizens of those States, and the masses of the people thereof, submitting to the authority of the Constitution, ought not to be hindered from restoring the proper relations of their respective States with the federal government, so far as the same is dependent on the voluntary act of the people, by any condition except unconditional submission to the Constitution and laws of the United States. In the language heretofore solemnly adopted by Congress, the war ought not to be waged on our part for any purpose of conquest or subjugation, or purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of those States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution and to preserve the Union, with all the dignity, equality, and rights of the several States unimpaired; and as soon as those objects are accomplished the war ought to cease.

Resolved, That all necessary and proper, appropriations of money ought to be promptly made by this Congress for the support of the military and naval forces of the government, and all measures of legislation necessary to increase and promote the efficiency of the army and navy and to maintain the public credit ought to be adopted; that, through a vigorous prosecution of the war, peace, on the basis of the union of the States and the supremacy of the Constitution, may be the most speedily obtained.

The same having been read,

Mr. Stevens moved that they be laid on the table.

And the question being put,

It was decided in the affirmative, { Yeas. .... 88

All the committees having been called,

The Speaker resumed the call of the States and Territories for resolutions. When,

Mr. Norton submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz :

Whereas it seems probable that warfare on the ocean will in great measure depend in the future on armored vessels, whose form, structure, and armament must be determined by experience in action ; and the attacks on Forts Darling and McAllister, the combats between the Monitor and Merrimack, and the Weehawken and Atlanta, and the first great naval battle delivered by armored vessels in the harbor of Charleston, have at once illustrated the American name and furnished the only information from experience in battle respecting the powers of resistance and aggression of armored vessels which exists to aid the deliberations of Congress in directing further constructions of such vessels ; but the Secretary of the Navy, while conveying the gratifying intelligence that during the " vigorous assault on Fort Sumter " " but comparatively slight injury was sustained by these vessels," though " no ships ever before sustained such a concentrated fire," has not communicated with his report the official and detailed despatches and reports of the officers in command of the armored vessels executing those attacks, from which alone exact and reliable information of the real capacity of those vessels for resistance, aggression, speed, manœuvring, and keeping the sea, as shown by experience, can be obtained, and without such information Congress must grope in the dark in ordering or refusing further construction of armored vessels : Therefore,

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Navy be directed to communicate to this house all official reports, despatches, and papers in the Navy Department relating to those actions : that is to say, the report of Captain Worden of the combat between the Monitor and Merrimack ; the report of Captain John Rodgers of the attack on Fort Darling, or the action near Drury's Bluff, on the James river ; the reports of Captain Worden and Captain Drayton of the two attacks on Fort McAllister, on the Ogeechee, with the despatches of Rear-Admiral DuPont transmitting them to the department ; the reports of Rear-Admiral DuPont of the attack of the 7th of April, 1863, on the defences of Charleston harbor, together with the reports of Captain Drayton of the Passaic, Commander Rhind of the Keokuk, Commander Downes of the Nahant, Captain John Rodgers of the Weehawken, Captain Worden of the Montauk, Commander Fairfax of the Nantucket, Commander George W. Rogers of the Catskill, Commodore Turner of the New Ironsides, and Commander Ammen of the Patapsco, touching their several vessels during that attack ; and also the reports of any investigations, after the action, into the condition of any of the armored vessels engaged in it, or respecting the repairs found to be necessary on any of those vessels after the action made by those officers or any of them, or any official statement respecting those vessels in connexion with the said action, or respecting experiments to test the value of rafts for the removal of obstructions, made by those officers or any of them, or by Engineers Lovering, Roble, or Stimers ; and also the report of the action between the Weehawken and Atlanta, by Captain John Rodgers, together with the despatches of Rear-Admiral DuPont transmitting it ; and all other official correspondence with any of these officers in the Navy Department respecting or relating to those actions ; also, the report of the sinking of the Weehawken within the bar off Charleston.

Resolved, That, prompted by a just patriotism, we are in favor of an earnest and successful prosecution of the war, and that we will give a warm and hearty support to all those measures which will be most effective in speedily overcoming the rebellion, and in securing a restoration of peace, and which may not substantially infringe the Constitution and tend to subvert the true theory and character of the government; and we hereby reiterate that the present deplorable civil war has been forced upon the country by the disunionists now in revolt against the constitutional government; that in the progress of this war, Congress, banishing all feeling of mere passion or resentment, will recollect only its duty to the whole country; that this war is not waged on our part in any spirit of oppression, nor for any purpose of conquest or subjugation, nor purpose of overthrowing or interfering with the rights or established institutions of those States, but to defend and maintain the supremacy of the Constitution, and to preserve the Union with all the dignity, equality, and rights of the several States unimpaired; that as soon as these objects are accomplished, the war ought to cease.

The same having been read,

Mr. Rollins moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Mr. Longyear submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of so amending section two of the "act to provide for enrolling and calling out the national forces and for other purposes," that the right of aged and infirm parents to select one of two or more sons liable to military duty under said act, to be exempt, shall depend upon the fact that such aged and infirm parents are dependent upon the labor of such son for their support.

Mr. Kasson, on leave, introduced a joint resolution (H. R. 11) in relation to the claim of Carmack and Ramsay; which was read a first and second time and referred to the Committee of Claims.

Mr. Kasson, on leave, also introduced a bill (H. R. 36) to equalize the salary of certain officers therein named; which was read a first time.

The resolution was then agreed to.

Mr. Kasson also submitted the following resolution; which was read and referred to the select committee on the rules, viz:

Resolved, That an additional standing committee shall be appointed at the commencement of the first session of each Congress, whose duties shall continue until the first session of the ensuing Congress, to consist of five members, to be entitled a committee on national and international coinage, weights, and measures; and to this committee shall be referred bills, resolutions, and communications to this house upon the subjects named in the title of the committee.

Mr. Grinnell submitted the following preamble and resolution; which were read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Whereas, since the breaking out of the rebellion, prisoners held by the United States have been treated under the rules of war with the most humane consideration; and whereas, on learning that our soldiers held at Richmond were suffering unto death for food and clothing, by the confession of their captors—in the language of Mr. Foote, of the rebel Congress, "the commissary general having starved the enemy's prisoners"—the friends of the prisoners and the soldiers' aid societies continued to forward food and clothing until forbidden by the rebel authorities: Therefore,

Resolved, That this is a wanton act of cruelty unprecedented in modern warfare, at war with the humane sentiments of the age, and meets the protest and execration of this house, and can but consign the authors of such infamous deeds to the reprobation of the Almighty.

Mr. Kinney submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas the government is involved in a terrible struggle for its existence, forced upon our great and hitherto unprecedentedly prosperous nation, without cause or justification, by men in armed rebellion against the most enlightened and liberal government of the world; and whereas the government is in need of the services of all the soldiers who have been raised since the breaking out of the rebellion; and whereas a number of companies of the California volunteers are now stationed at Camp Douglas, within the city limits of Great Salt Lake City, Utah Territory, far removed from usefulness and the active scenes of war: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to inquire into the causes which have led to the stationing of a large standing army among a peaceful and loyal people.

Mr. McBride submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Mr. Price submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas, by treaty stipulations now existing, this government is prohibited from establishing or maintaining an armament of any kind on our northern lakes; and whereas a vast extent of fertile country and an immense and constantly increasing commerce is thus exposed, in the event of a war with Europe, to invasion and destruction; and whereas the rapidly increasing surplus agricultural products of the northwest require an outlet by water to the Atlantic seaboard; and whereas it is believed that the increased stimulus which would be given to commerce and agriculture by opening a water communication between the Mississippi river and the east by way of the great lakes would, by cheapening the cost of transportation to and from the west and east, so far increase the foreign commerce of the country that the import duties on return cargoes would far exceed the interest on the cost of the proposed work, and provide a sinking fund for its liquidation: in view, therefore, of the great necessity which exists, both in a military and commercial point of view, for the construction of this work, be it

Resolved, That the Committee on Roads and Canals be instructed to inquire into the expediency and necessity of constructing and enlarging such canals as shall be necessary to connect the waters of the Hudson and Mississippi rivers with the great lakes, and that they be required to report by bill or otherwise.

The same having been read,

Mr. Price moved the previous question.

Mr. Allison submitted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on Roads and Canals be instructed to inquire into the expediency and necessity of improving the upper rapids of the Mississippi river by canal, commencing at Davenport, the foot of said rapids, with leave to report by bill or otherwise.

The same having been read,

Mr. Allison moved the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered to be put.

When

Mr. Holman moved that the resolution be laid on the table; which motion was disagreed to.

The resolution was then agreed to.

Mr. Grinnell submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and, under the operation of the previous question, agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Post Office and Post Roads be instructed to inquire into the expediency of amending the postal law so as to allow the letters of soldiers in actual service to pass through the mails free of postage.

Mr. McClurg submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be, and is hereby, directed to furnish, at as early a day as convenient, to the House, the report of the commissioners, appointed by the President, to "examine and report the claims of officers and men actually employed in the western department, or department of Missouri," in conformity with a joint resolution approved February 16 1863, and that said report be printed.

Mr. Edgerton submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas the proclamations of the President of January 1, 1863, and December 8, 1863, in relation to emancipation, impose conditions of pardon and amnesty to the persons who have participated in the existing rebellion, as well as conditions precedent to the establishment and recognition of State government in the States to which said proclamations apply, which, in the judgment of a large number of faithful citizens, have a tendency to give to the rebellion "the advantage of a changed issue," and "to reinvigorate the otherwise declining insurrection in the South," and to prolong the war; and whereas this house cannot but regard with anxiety the unprecedented and extraordinary claims and assumption of high prerogative by the President in said proclamations, especially in view of the fact that the President, in his inaugural address of the 4th day of March, 1861, declared, "I have no purpose directly or indirectly to interfere with the institution of slavery in the States where it exists; I believe I have no right to do so, and I have no inclination to do so:" Therefore,

Resolved, As the judgment of this house, that the maintenance inviolate of the constitutional powers of Congress, and the rights of the States, and especially the right of each State to order and control its own domestic institutions according to its own judgment exclusively, is essential to the balance of power on which the perfection and endurance of our political fabric of federal union depends; and we denounce, as among the gravest of crimes, the invasion or occupation, by armed force, of any State, under the pretext or for the purpose of coercing the people thereof to modify or abrogate any of their laws or domestic institutions that are consistent with the Constitution of the United States; and we affirm the principle declared in this resolution to be a law, alike to the President and the people of the United States.

The same having been read,

Mr. Edgerton moved the previous question.

So the preamble and resolution were laid on the table.

A message in writing was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Nicolay, his private secretary, which was handed in at the Speaker's table.

Mr. Harrington submitted the following preamble and resolutions, viz :

Whereas the Constitution of the United States (article one, section nine) provides : "The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended, unless when, in cases of rebellion or invasion, the public safety may require it;" and whereas such provision is contained in the portion of the Constitution defining legislative powers, and not in the provisions defining executive powers; and whereas the Constitution (article four of amendments) further provides : "The right of the people to be secure in their persons, houses, papers, and effects, against unreasonable searches and seizures, shall not be violated," &c.; and whereas the thirty-seventh Congress did, by act, claim to confer upon the President of the United States the power, at his will and pleasure, to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus throughout the United States, without limitations or conditions; and whereas the President of the United States, by proclamation, has assumed to suspend such privileges of the citizen in the loyal States; and whereas the people of such States have been subjected to arbitrary arrests without process of law, and to unreasonable search and seizures, and have been denied the right to a speedy trial and investigation, and have languished in prisons at the arbitrary pleasure of the Chief Executive and his military subordinates: Now, therefore,

Resolved by the House of Representatives of the United States, That no power is delegated by the Constitution of the United States, either to the legislative or executive power, to suspend the privileges of the writ of habeas corpus in any State loyal to the Constitution and government, not invaded, and in which the civil and judicial powers are in full operation.

2. Resolved, That Congress has no power under the Constitution to delegate to the President of the United States the authority to suspend the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and imprison at his pleasure, without process of law or trial, the citizens of the loyal States.

3. Resolved, That the assumption of the right by the Executive of the United States to deprive the citizens of such loyal States of the benefits of the writ of habeas corpus, and to imprison them at his pleasure, without process of law, is unworthy the progress of the age, is consistent only with a despotic power unlimited by constitutional obligations, and is wholly subversive of the elementary principles of freedom upon which the government of the United States and of the several States is based.

4. Resolved, That the Judiciary Committee be instructed to prepare and report a bill to this house protecting the rights of the citizens in the loyal States, in strict accordance with the foregoing provisions of the Constitution of the United States.

The same having been read,

Mr. Harrington moved the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered and put, viz: Will the House agree thereto?

Mr. G. Clay Smith submitted the following resolutions, viz:

1. Resolved, That as our country, and the very existence of the best government ever instituted by man, are imperilled by the most causeless and wicked rebellion that the world has seen, and believing, as we do, that the only hope of saving this country and preserving this government is by the power of the sword, we are for the most vigorous prosecution of the war until the Constitution and laws shall be enforced and obeyed in all parts of the United States; and to that end we oppose any armistice, or intervention, or mediation, or proposition for peace from any quarter, so long as there shall be found a rebel in arms against the government; and we ignore all party names, lines, and issues, and recognize but two parties in this war—patriots and traitors.

2. Resolved, That we hold it to be the duty of Congress to pass all necessary bills to supply men and money, and the duty of the people to render every aid in their power to the constituted authorities of the government in the crushing out of the rebellion, and in bringing the leaders thereof to condign punishment.

3. Resolved, That our thanks are tendered to our soldiers in the field for their gallantry in defending and upholding the flag of the Union, and defending the great principles dear to every American patriot.

The same having been read,

Mr. Cobb, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that the committee did, on the 17th instant, present to the President of the United States a joint resolution of the following title, viz :

H. Res. 1. Joint resolution of thanks to Major General Ulysses S. Grant, and the officers and soldiers who have fought under his command during this rebellion, and providing that the President of the United States shall cause a medal to be struck, to be presented to Major General Grant in the name of the people of the United States of America.

A message was received from the President of the United States, by Mr. Nicolay, his private secretary, notifying the House that he did, on the 17th instant, approve and sign the foregoing joint resolution, (H. Res. 1.)

The Speaker, by unanimous consent, laid before the House the following message heretofore received from the President of the United State, viz :

To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States:

Herewith I lay before you a letter addressed to myself by a committee of gentlemen representing the Freedmen's Aid Societies in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, and Cincinnati. The subject of the letter, as indicated above, is one of great magnitude and importance, and one which these gentlemen, of known ability and high character, seem to have considered with great attention and care. Not having the time to form a mature judgment of my own as to whether the plan they suggest is the best, I submit the whole subject to Congress, deeming that their attention thereto is almost imperatively demanded.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

DECEMBER 17, 1863.

The same having been read,

Ordered, That it be printed and referred to the Committee on Emancipation.

The Speaker also, by unanimous consent, laid before the House executive communications as follows, viz :

I. A letter from the Secretary of State, transmitting a statement of the number of seamen registered in the several ports of entry of the United States during the year ending September 30, 1862 ; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce and ordered to be printed.

II. A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a statement of the number and names of persons employed in the Coast Survey during the last fiscal year, their compensation, &c.; which was laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Dawes submitted the following resolution ; which was read, considered and agreed to, viz :

Resolved, That there be printed so much of the documentary and other evidence in the several cases of contested election already referred to the Committee of Elections, as, in the judgment of said committee, will be necessary for a proper understanding of each case.

The Speaker having, as the regular order of business, called all the committees for reports for commitment,

Mr. Stevens, by unanimous consent, from the Committee of Ways and Means, reported a joint resolution (H. Res. 14) to supply in part deficiencies in the appropriations for the public printing, and to supply deficiencies in the appropriations for bounties and premiums to volunteers ; which was read a first and second time, committed to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, by unanimous consent, made a special order for this day at 2 o'clock p. m.

The Speaker having resumed the call of the States and Territories for resolutions,

Mr. Yeaman submitted the following resolutions, viz:

Resolved, That a conspiracy of persons, combined together, and assuming the name of a State, or a confederation of States, for levying war upon the United States, or for withdrawing such States from the Union, does not extinguish the political franchises of the loyal citizens of such States ; and such loyal citizens have the right, at any time, to administer, amend, or establish a State government without other condition than that it shall be republican in form.

2 That a formal return or readmission of any State into the Union is not necessary. It is sufficient that the people, or those who are loyal in any State, and qualified by the election laws thereof in force before the rebellion, shall, at any time, resume the functions of a State government compatible with the Union, and with the Constitution and laws of the United States ; and doing this is sufficient evidence of loyalty for the purpose of doing it.

3. That all questions touching property rights and interests, arising out of confiscation and emancipation, and the effect and validity of any law, proclamation, military order, emergency of war, or act of rebellion, upon the title to any property, or upon the status of any persons heretofore held to service or labor in any State under the laws thereof, are left for the judicial determination of the courts of the United States.

The same having been read,

Mr. Yeaman moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Mr. Lovejoy moved that the said resolutions be referred to the select committee on the rebellious States.

Pending which,

Mr. Lovejoy moved the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the motion to refer was agreed to.

Mr. Lovejoy moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Resolved, That the Committee of Elections be authorized to summon Colonel John W. Foster, 65th Indiana mounted infantry, 4th cavalry brigade, army of the Ohio, to appear before the committee to testify in behalf of George H. Yeaman, in the matter of the contested election now pending before the House, in which Mr. Yeaman is the returned member from the 12th congressional district of Kentucky, and John H. McHenry, jr., is contestant.

The same having been read,

On motion of Mr. Ellihu B. Washburne,

Ordered, That it be referred to the Committee of Elections.

Mr. Spalding submitted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That a select committee of nine be constituted to consider the subject of a national bankrupt act, and to report thereon by bill or otherwise.

The same having been read,

So the House refused to lay the resolution on the table.

The question then recurring on the demand for the previous question, it was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. Spalding moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. Cox submitted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs inquire into the expediency of a total repeal of the act of March 3, 1863, for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes; and that, in lieu thereof, they report a bill calling forth the militia of the States to "execute the laws of the Union and to suppress insurrection," in pursuance of the eighth section, article one, of the Constitution, and providing for the organization, arming, disciplining, and governing of the said militia, reserving to the States, respectively, the appointment of the officers, and the authority of training the militia, according to the discipline prescribed by Congress. Or, if that be not expedient, that said committee inquire, further, into the expediency of repealing so much of said act as allows substitutes or exemption for money, so that all citizens owing allegiance shall be liable to serve the government, without regard to their pecuniary ability to obtain discharge therefrom by the procuration of substitutes or the payment of money: Provided, however, That said substitution and exemption shall not be repealed so far as it relates to the present call for troops in States where the law, under that call, has not been executed.

The same having been read,

Mr. Cox moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising on the resolution, it was laid over under the rule.

Mr. Ashley, on leave, introduced a bill (H. R. 48) to provide for the establishment of provisional military governments over the districts of country declared by the President's proclamation to be in rebellion against the government of the United States, and to authorize the loyal citizens thereof to organize State governments, republican in form, and for other purposes; which was read a first and second time and referred to the select committee on rebellious States.

Mr. Schenck, on leave, introduced a bill (H. R. 49) to create a Bureau of Military Justice; which was read a first and second time, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Hutchins submitted the following preamble and resolution; which were read, considered and agreed to, viz:

Whereas the President of the United States, in his recent message, recommends the establishment of a yard and depot for naval purposes upon one of our western rivers: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of establishing such navy yard and depot and locating the same at Portsmouth or Ironton, or some other feasible point on the Ohio river, within the Hanging Rock iron region of southern Ohio, and that they report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Schenck moved that the rules be suspended, so as to enable him to report from the Committee on Military Affairs, and the House to consider, a bill to repeal section three and part of section ten of an act entitled "An act for enrolling and calling out the national forces, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1863.,'

And the question being put, it was decided in the negative, two-thirds not voting in favor thereof.

Mr. William H. Miller submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz :

Whereas the entire people of the States still adhering to the federal Union are sorely exercised by reason of the reported suffering of their brethren now prisoners of war in the Confederate States; and whereas the commonest promptings of humanity should induce the executive representative of the nation to exhaust every proper effort to alleviate their distressed condition and restore them to their homes; and whereas we are well informed that the number of confederate prisoners in our hands is vastly in excess of the number of federal prisoners in theirs, and that exchange could be made, excluding the question of color, that would restore our white brethren to liberty without prejudicing what may be supposed to be the rights of colored federal soldiers now prisoners of war: Therefore,

Resolved, That the President of the United States be respectfully requested to promptly instruct those having in charge the matter of the exchange of prisoners between the United States and the so-called Confederate States to propose an exchange of white men for white men, leaving other questions to be disposed of when the suffering white sons of the republic shall have been restored to the service of the government, their friends, and firesides.

The same having been read,

Mr. William H. Miller moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Mr. John O'Neill moved that the preamble and resolution be laid on the table.

Whereas the act of Congress approved March 3, 1863, commonly called the conscription law, is oppressive, unjust, and unconstitutional; because, 1st, it takes from the States the control of their own militia; 2d, it subjects the rights of the States and the liberties of the people to the unlimited power of the federal government; 3d, it is calculated to create and build up a central military despotism which may be used for the worst and most dangerous purposes; 4th, it falsely imputes the crime of desertion to every man whose name is drawn in the "lottery of death," and who fails to join the army, and subjects him to trial, condemnation, and capital punishment, without a jury of his peers, contrary to the fundamental law of the land: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to bring in a bill for the unconditional repeal of said act of Congress, and substitute in its place some constitutional and just mode of raising armies for the service of the United States.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

By a joint resolution of your honorable bodies, approved December 23, 1863, the paying of bounties to veteran volunteers, as now practiced by the War Department, is, to the extent of three hundred dollars in each case, prohibited after this fifth day of the present month. I transmit for your consideration a communication from the Secretary of War, accompanied by one from the Provost Marshal General to him, both relating to the subject above mentioned. I earnestly recommend that the law be so modified as to allow bounties to be paid as they now are, at least until the ensuing first day of February.

I am not without anxiety lest I appear to be importunate, in thus recalling your attention to a subject upon which you have so recently acted; and nothing but a deep conviction that the public interest demands it could induce me to incur the hazard of being misunderstood on this point. The executive approval was given by me to the resolution mentioned; and it is now, by a closer attention and a fuller knowledge of facts, that I feel constrained to recommend a reconsideration of the subject.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

JANUARY 5, 1864.

It will be noticed that two claims of Peruvian citizens on this government have been allowed. An appropriation for the discharge of the obligations of the United States in these cases is requested.

When

Mr. Blaine submitted the following resolution; which was laid over one day, under the rule, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to ascertain and report the amount of debt incurred in the several States in their efforts to aid in suppressing the rebellion; and that, in the judgment of this house, all debts legitimately and necessarily contracted for this purpose should ultimately be assumed and liquidated by the general government.

Mr. John D. Baldwin submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas the organized treason having its headquarters at Richmond exists in defiant violation of the national Constitution, and has no claim to be treated otherwise than as an outlaw; and whereas this Richmond combination of conspirators and traitors can have no rightful authority over the people of any portion of the national Union, and no warrant for assuming control of the political destiny of the people of any State or section of this Union, and no apology but that of conspiracy and treason for any assumption of authority whatever: Therefore,

Resolved, That any proposition to negotiate with the rebel leaders at Richmond (sometimes called "the authorities at Richmond") for a restoration of loyalty and order in those portions of the republic which have been disorganized by the rebellion is, in effect, a proposition to recognize the ringleaders of the rebellion as entitled to represent and bind the loyal citizens of the United States whom they oppress, and to give countenance and support to the pretensions of conspiracy and treason; and therefore every such proposition should be rejected without hesitation and delay.

The same having been read,

Mr. Baldwin moved the previous question on the resolution; which was seconded and the main question ordered to be put.

When

So the preamble was agreed to.

Mr. Brandegee submitted the following preamble and resolution; which were read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Whereas the attention of Congress has at a previous and also at the present session been called by the Secretary of the Navy to the necessity for the establishment of new yards or naval depots for the construction, docking, and repair of iron-clad vessels: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of the establishment of such yards or depots, and to report at what site or sites such yard or yards ought to be established, with leave to report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Brandegee moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. Rogers submitted the following resolutions, viz:

Resolved, That as our country and the existence of the old Union are imperilled by a rebellion against the wisest and best government ever devised by man, we are for the most united, determined, and vigorous prosecution of the war for the purpose of enforcing the Constitution of the United States and the laws made in pursuance thereof in all parts of the United States; but at the same time we are for adding to force the power of conciliation and compromise so far as is consistent with an honorable and lasting peace, and founded solely upon a restoration of the Union under the Constitution, and in no event to agree to or countenance a dissolution of the Union; and that we believe the appointment of commissioners upon the part of the federal government, to meet commissioners similarly appointed by the insurgent States, to convene in some suitable place for the purpose of considering whether any, and if any, what plan may be adopted consistent with the honor and dignity of the nation, and based upon a restoration of the whole Union, by which the present war may be brought to a close, and the lives, limbs, and health of the gallant officers and soldiers of the Union preserved, and the liberties of the people maintained, is not inconsistent with the honor and dignity of the federal government, but, as an indication of the spirit which animates the adhering States, would, in any event, tend to strengthen us in the opinion of other nations and the loyal people of the insurgent States; and hoping, as we sincerely do, that the people of the southern States would reciprocate the peaceful indications thus evinced, and believing, as we do, that under the blessings of God, great benefits would arise from such conference, we most earnestly recommend such conference to the consideration of the President and Senate of the United States, and request their co-operation therein, and hope that the President will appoint commissioners for that purpose.

Resolved, That the people of the several States now in rebellion against the government of the United States, whenever they shall desire to return to the Union and obey the Constitution of the United States, and laws made in pursuance thereof, have a right under and by virtue of the said Constitution to reorganize their respective State governments with all their domestic institutions as they were before the war, and to elect representatives to the Congress of the United States, and be represented in the Union with all the rights of the people of the several States, and without any conditions precedent except that of being liable to be punished according to the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof, as their laws and acts of secession are unconstitutional and void.

The same having been read,

Mr. Rogers moved the previous question; which was seconded, and the main question ordered to be put.

Mr. Stevens moved that the series of resolutions be laid on the table.

Mr. Scofield submitted the following resolution; which was read and laid over one day under the rule, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby requested to inform the House whether, under existing legislation, the 7.30 United States Treasury notes, due August 19 and October 1, 1864, will be paid in the coin of the United States; also, whether any additional legislation is necessary to make the interest and principal of the twenty-year bonds, into which the 7.30 Treasury notes are convertible, payable in coin.

Mr. Samuel J. Randall submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas a large number of our brave and patriotic soldiers and officers are now incarcerated in prisons in the southern States, and are there exposed to the peril of famine, diseases of different kinds, and hardships whereby they are daily dying without aid or comfort; and whereas the rebel prisoners now confined in the United States are not exposed to these hardships, nor to the diseases incident to an unhealthy climate, by means whereof there is no reciprocity between the condition of our officers and privates taken prisoners and confined and the rebel prisoners in our possession; and whereas this state of things is most oppressive and unequal, and fatal to the lives and health of those who have been captured fighting for the Constitution and Union, and is impoverishing the strength of our armies: Therefore—

Resolved, That the President of the United States be, and he is hereby, requested to continue to use all his efforts, consistent with the honor and dignity of the nation, to procure a prompt exchange of prisoners with the rebel confederate government, and that if such exchange cannot be extended to all prisoners, that it may be carried into effect as to any portion that may be agreed upon between the parties.

Whereas, in the opinion of this house, the federal government is invested by the Constitution of the United States with all necessary power and authority to suppress any resistance, whether armed or unarmed, to the rightful power and jurisdiction of the United States: Therefore,

Be it resolved, That in this national emergency Congress will forego all feeling of mere passion, except that which loyalty dictates, all resentment except such as is due to treason; and that this war of national self-defence against armed rebels, insurrectionary traitors, and sympathizing abettors, should be waged on our part until such rebels and traitors are conquered into love for the Union, and made obedient to the Constitution and laws of the United States, and take the oath of allegiance to the country, and of submission to the emancipation proclamation, and the proclamation of December 8, 1863; and when those objects are accomplished, the leading rebels and chief traitors should be hung, and the war cease.

So the House refused to lay the resolution on the table.

The question then recurring on the demand for the previous question, it was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. Pike moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. John H. Rice submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to communicate to this house the report and tabular statements made and returned to him by the commissioners appointed by the President in accordance with the provisions of an act entitled "An act for the release of certain persons held to service or labor in the District of Columbia," approved April 16, 1862, and an act supplementary thereto, approved July 12, 1862.

Mr. Fernando Wood submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz: Whereas accusations seriously affecting the official integrity of Major General Benjamin F. Butler, in the discharge of his duties while in command of New Orleans, have been publicly made; and whereas other military officers have been charged with delinquencies, oppressive conduct, and connivance at fraud; and whereas it is stated that inefficiency, collusion in procuring supplies, and malversations exist in the Navy Department; and whereas recent disclosures show that in the custom-house at New York, and in other branches of the Treasury Department, the revenue has been defrauded and treasonable aid given to the insurrectionists; and whereas it is apparent that general demoralization and incapacity pervades the executive branch of the government to an extent which calls for the interposition and preventive legislation of Congress: Therefore,

Resolved, That a committee of nine be appointed to investigate into and to ascertain the foundation for these accusations, with power to send for persons and papers, to take testimony under oath, to make recommendations for the necessary reforms, and to report at any time.

The same having been read,

Mr. Wood moved the previous question.

Pending which,

Mr. Broomall submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas the burden of government should be made to fall as nearly equally as possible upon all parts of the country; and whereas the southern portion of the country has for several years contributed little, either in men or money, towards the support of the government; and whereas almost the only way to get men from that portion is to take black men; and whereas for every black man enlisted in the south some man in the overburdened north may be exempted from draft.

Whereas a great civil war like that which now afflicts the United States is the most grievous of all national calamities, producing, as it does, spoliation, bloodshed, anarchy, public debt, official corruption, and private immorality, the American government cannot rightfully wage such a war upon any portion of its people, except for the sole purpose of vindicating the Constitution and laws, and restoring both to their just supremacy; and whereas this house, on the 22d day of July, 1861, speaking in the name of the American people and in the face of the world, solemnly and truly declared that it was waged for no purpose of conquest or oppression, but solely to restore the Union, with all the rights of the people and the State unimpaired; and whereas, in every war, especially in every war of invasion, and most particularly if it be a civil war between portions of the same country, the object of it ought to be clearly defined and the terms distinctly stated upon which hostilities will cease; and the advancing armies of the government should carry the Constitution in one hand, while they hold the sword in the other, so that the invaded party may have its choice between the two: Therefore,

Resolved, That the President be requested to make known by public proclamation or otherwise, to all the country, that whenever any State now in insurrection shall submit herself to the authority of the federal government, as defined in the Constitution, all hostilities against her shall cease, and such State shall be protected from all external interference with the local laws and institutions, and her people shall be guaranteed in the full enjoyment of all those rights which the federal Constitution gave them.

The same having been read,

Mr. Edgerton submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of so amending the second section of the act entitled "An act for enrolling and calling out the national forces and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1863, as to provide for the exemption from draft or military service under said act, without payment of commutation money, or liability to procure substitutes, of all clergymen or ministers of religion in regular standing with their proper ecclesiastical authorities, in any church or religious society, who, by the laws or canons of such church or society, in force prior to the commencement of the existing civil war, are forbidden to shed human blood, or to take human life in war; and for the like exemption of all other persons who have sincere religious convictions or scruples of conscience against taking part in war: Provided, That the facts upon which such exemption shall be claimed by any person shall be verified in such manner as the amendment may prescribe; and that said committee report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Holman submitted the following preamble and resolution; which were read, considered, and, under the operation of the previous question, agreed to, viz:

Whereas this house has been officially informed that a large number of officers of the army, including a number of major and brigadier generals, have been, for a long period of time, relieved from active service, while still receiving the full pay pertaining to their rank; and whereas such policy, while embarrassing to the officers so relieved, is manifestly unjust to the country, and interferes with just and proper promotions in the army: Therefore,

Resolved, That, in the judgment of this house, the policy of retaining in the pay of the government officers who have been indefinitely relieved from active service, not physically disabled by wounds, and who have not been placed on the retired list, ought to be discontinued; and that the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to inquire what legislation, if any, is necessary to effect a remedy in the premises, and reduce the number of general officers not employed in active service, and report by bill or otherwise.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

"That, from and after the passage of this act, in lieu of the duty provided for in section forty-one of an act entitled 'An act to support the government and to pay interest on the public debt,' approved July first, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, and in addition to duties payable for licenses, there shall be levied, collected, and paid on all spirits that may be distilled and sold, or distilled and removed for consumption or sale, after the twelfth day of January, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, of first proof, the duty of sixty cents on each and every gallon; and said duty shall be a lien and charge on such spirits, and also on the interest of all persons in default in the distillery used for distilling the same, with all the stills, vessels, fixtures, and tools therein, and in the lot or tract of land whereon the said distillery is situated, until the said duty shall be paid: Provided, That the said duty on spirituous liquors, and all other spirituous beverages enumerated in this act, shall be collected at no lower rate than the basis of first proof, and shall be increased in proportion for any greater strength than the strength of first proof.

"SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That all spirits or other articles on which duties are imposed by the provisions of this act, or of the act referred to in the first section of this act and amendments thereto, which shall be found in the possession or custody or within the control of any person or persons, for the purpose of being sold by such person or persons, in fraud of the internal revenue laws, as heretofore referred to, or with design to avoid payment of said duties, may be seized by any collector or deputy collector who shall have reason to believe that the same are possessed, had, or held for the purpose or design aforesaid, that the same shall be forfeited to the United States; and also all articles of raw materials found in the possession of any person or persons intending to manufacture the same for the purpose of being sold by them, in fraud of said laws, or with design to evade the payment of said duties; and also all tools, implements, instruments, and personal property whatsoever, used in the place or building, or within any yard or enclosure where such articles on which duties are imposed, as aforesaid, shall be found, may also be seized by any collector or deputy collector, as aforesaid, and the same shall be forfeited as aforesaid. And the proceedings to enforce said forfeiture shall be in the nature of a proceeding in rem in the circuit or district court of the United States for the district where such seizure is made, or in any other court of competent jurisdiction. And any person who shall have in his custody or possession any such spirits or other articles, subject to duty as aforesaid, for the purpose of selling the same with the design of avoiding payment of the duties imposed thereon, shall be liable to a penalty of five hundred dollars, or not less than double the amount of duties fraudulently attempted to be evaded, to be recovered as other penalties provided by the act heretofore mentioned; and also that the spirits and other articles which shall be so seized by any collector or deputy collector shall, during the pendency of such proceedings, be delivered to the marshal of said district, and remain in his care and custody and under his control until final judgment in such proceedings shall be rendered: Provided, however, That where, owing to its perishable nature, the expense of storage, or other circumstances, the value of the property seized may be diminished by delay of sale, the owner thereof may apply to the assessor of the district, who shall, if he deem it expedient that the property so seized should be sold, cause the same to be appraised under his direction and control, and delivered to the owner, if the said owner shall give bond or bonds in an amount equal to the appraised value, with such sureties as the assessor shall adjudge good and sufficient, which shall be by him transmitted to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, to be held and collected, or any part thereof, or surrendered in accordance with the final judgment, order, or decree of the court having jurisdiction of the case; or, if the owner shall not apply as aforesaid, the assessor, upon the application of the marshal of the said district in whose custody and control said spirits or other articles seized as aforesaid may be, shall appraise or have the same appraised under his direction and control, and shall issue and return to the marshal aforesaid an order to sell the same; and the said marshal shall thereupon advertise and sell the same, and the proceeds of sale, after deducting therefrom the costs of seizure and sale, shall be paid into the court having jurisdiction of the case, and paid out as the said court shall on final judgment order or decree.

"SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That all distilled spirits upon which an excise duty is imposed by law may be exported without payment of said duty, and, when the same is intended for exportation, may, without being charged with duty, be removed under such rules and regulations and upon the execution of such transportation bonds or other security as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe; said bonds or other security to be taken by the collector of internal revenue of the district from which such removal is made: Provided, That the said spirits shall be transported directly from the distillery or a bonded warehouse, to a bonded warehouse established in conformity with the law and treasury regulations, at a port of entry of the United States, and used for the storage of distilled spirits; and to be placed in charge of a proper officer of the customs, who, together with the owner and proprietor of the warehouse, shall have the joint custody of all the distilled spirits stored in said warehouse. And all the labor on the goods so stored shall be performed by the owner or proprietor of the warehouse, under the supervision of the officer of the customs in charge of the same, and at the expense of the said owner or proprietor; and the said spirits shall also be subject to the same rules and regulations, and be chargeable with the same costs and expenses, in all respects, to which other goods that are deposited in public store for exportation from the United States may be subject. And no drawback shall in any case be allowed on any distilled spirit upon which an excise duty shall have been paid either before or after it shall have been placed in a bonded warehouse as aforesaid; but no provision of this act shall be construed to repeal existing laws which provide that distilled spirits may be removed from the place of manufacture or bonded warehouse for the purpose of being redistilled for exportation, or which provides for the manufacture for exportation of medicines, preparations, compositions, perfumery, and cosmetics.

"SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act, in lieu of the duties provided in the act referred to in the first section of this act, there shall be levied, collected, and paid upon all cotton produced or sold and removed for consumption, and upon which no duty has been levied, paid, or collected, a duty of two cents per pound; and such duty shall be and remain a lien thereon until said duty shall have been paid, in the possession of any person whomsoever. And further, if any person or persons, corporation or association of persons, remove, carry, or transport the same, or procure any other party or parties to remove, carry, or transport the same, from the place of its production, with the intent to evade the duty thereon, or to defraud the government, before said duty shall have been paid, such person or persons, corporation or association or persons, shall forfeit and pay to the United States double the amount of said duty, to be recovered in any court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, That all cotton sold by or on account of the government of the United States shall be free and exempt from duty at the time of and after the sale thereof; and the same shall be marked free and the purchaser furnished with such a bill of sale as shall clearly and accurately describe the same, which shall be deemed and taken to be a permit authorizing the sale or removal thereof.

"SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That every collector to whom any duty upon cotton shall be paid shall mark the bales, or other packages, upon which the duty shall have been paid, in such manner as may clearly indicate the payment thereof, and shall give to the owner, or other person having charge of such cotton, a permit for the removal of the same, which shall be dated and contain a description, including the weight and other marks of the bales, or packages, and a statement of the fact that the duty has been paid. Whenever any cotton, the product of the United States, shall arrive at any port of the United States from any State in insurrection against the government, the assessor or assistant assessor, under the act referred to in the first section of this act, shall immediately assess the taxes due thereon, and shall, without delay, return the same to the collector or deputy collector of said district, and the said collector or deputy collector shall demand of the owner or other person having charge of such cotton the tax imposed by this act, and assessed thereon, unless evidence of previous payment of said tax shall be produced, under such regulations as the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, by the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall from time to time prescribe. And in case the tax so assessed shall not be paid to such collector within thirty days after demand, the collector or deputy collector, as aforesaid, shall institute proceedings for the recovery of the tax, which shall be a lien upon said cotton from the time when said assessment shall be made.

"SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That from and after the date on which this act takes effect, in computing the allowance or drawback upon articles manufactured exclusively of cotton when exported, there shall be allowed, in addition to the three per centum duty which shall have been paid on such articles, a drawback of two cents per pound upon such articles in all cases where the duty imposed by this act upon the cotton used in the manufacture thereof shall be satisfactorily shown to have been previously paid; the amount of said drawback to be ascertained in such manner as may be prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

"SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That from and after the passage of this act, in addition to the duties heretofore imposed by law, there shall be levied, collected, and paid on spirits distilled from grain or other materials, whether of American or foreign production, imported from foreign countries, of first proof, a duty of forty cents on each and every gallon; and no lower rate of duty shall be levied or collected than upon the basis of first proof, and shall be increased in proportion for any greater strength than the strength of first proof."

The Speaker having proceeded, as the business next in order, to call the States and Territories for resolutions,

Mr. Orth submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and, under the operation of the previous question, agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Judiciary be instructed to inquire into the expediency of organizing a department of the government, to be denominated the "Department of Industry," to embrace under its supervision and control a bureau of agriculture; a bureau of freedmen's affairs; a bureau of mines, minerals and mineral lands; and a bureau of colonization and immigration; and to report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Harrington submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on Naval Affairs be instructed to inquire into the expediency of establishing a navy yard at Madison, in the State of Indiana, and report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Holman submitted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the immediate increase in the pay of the private soldiers of the army is imperatively demanded by every consideration of justice and sound public policy; that such increase is especially necessary and proper in behalf of those soldiers who entered the army prior to the adoption of the present regulations as to bounties; and that the Committee on Military Affairs be instructed to report a bill, at the earliest practicable moment, increasing the pay of the private soldiers to correspond substantially with the increase in the price of labor and of all articles of domestic consumption since the pay of the private soldier was fixed at thirteen dollars per month.

The same having been read,

Mr. Holman moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Mr. Stevens moved that the resolution be referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

So the resolution was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. Hickey, their chief clerk:

Mr. Speaker: The Senate have passed a bill of this house of the following title, viz:

H. R 65. An act to change the place of holding the circuit and district courts of the United States for the district of West Tennessee, and for other purposes; without amendment.

Mr. McDowell submitted the following resolutions, viz:

Resolved, 1. That the House fully recognizes the great fundamental provision of the Constitution of the United States which guarantees the freedom of speech to every American citizen; and that neither the President, nor any person acting in a subordinate capacity to him, has the rightful authority to arrest and imprison a citizen of the loyal States for the utterance of sentiments distasteful to the men in power.

2. That we recognize in the freedom of the press the great bulwark of civil liberty; and that those persons temporarily intrusted with power have not the rightful authority, in those States not in rebellion, to subvert this great constitutional guarantee by issuing military orders, or by a resort to any other means unknown to the laws of the country.

3. That the right to security of person from arrest in the loyal States, when no crime is charged, is a sacred right guaranteed to every citizen; and that neither the President, nor any one acting by his authority, has the legal right to arrest, imprison, or transport our people without "due process of law," requiring affidavit, warrant, arrest, and trial by a jury of the country, impartially selected.

4. That the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus is a fundamental and inherent right belonging to the American people, solemnly guaranteed by express provision of the Constitution, that cannot be denied to the citizens of the loyal States, where the courts are open and the administration of justice unobstructed, and "invasion and rebellion" do not exist.

5. That the Constitution of the United States is one of expressed and limited powers, and that neither Congress nor the Executive have the "lawful right" to interfere with the established rights and domestic institutions of the several States.

6. That we reaffirm our unalterable devotion to the Constitution of the United States, and to each and every provision thereof, as framed by the fathers, including those provisions relating to the rights of property and the inviolability of contracts, as understood and interpreted by the Supreme Court of the United States.

The same having been read,

Mr. McDowell moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising on the resolutions, they were laid over under the rule.

Mr. Edgerton submitted the following preamble and resolutions, viz:

Whereas this house on the 17th day of December last adopted, with but one dissentient vote, the following resolution, to wit: "Resolved, That we hold it to be the duty of Congress to pass all necessary bills to supply men and money, and the duty of the people to render every aid in their power to the constituted authorities of the government in the crushing out of the rebellion, and in bringing the leaders thereof to condign punishment:"

Therefore, in explanation of the foregoing resolution, and in further expression of the opinion and purpose of this house,

Resolved, That the aid hitherto liberally supplied in men and money by the people of the United States, to enable the federal Executive to prosecute the existing civil war, has been so supplied by all citizens truly faithful to the federal Union and Constitution, for the purpose, and no other, expressed in the resolution adopted by Congress in July, 1861, declarative of the object of the war, and commonly known as "the Crittenden resolution;" and public faith, true Christian humanity, and wise statesmanship alike demand strict adherence by "the constituted authorities of the government" to the purpose or object of the war, as thus declared by Congress and accepted by the people.

Resolved, That the demand of the President, in his proclamation of December 8, 1863, that the people of the States wherein rebellion exists shall swear to abide by and support his proclamations of emancipation (in other words, change, or submit to the change, at his dictation, of their State constitutions, local laws, and domestic institutions, not inconsistent with the Constitution of the United States) before such States or their people will by him be considered to have ceased to be in rebellion, and entitled to pardon or amnesty, and entitled to their constitutional rights of State government, in harmony with the government of the United States, is, in the judgment of this house, an oppressive and unconstitutional demand, the tendency and effect of which, if persisted in and enforced by war, will be to substantially change the object and character of the war on the part of the federal government, from one to preserve, protect, and defend the Constitution of the United States as the supreme law of the land, to a revolutionary war against the constitutional rights and sovereignty of federal States, and virtually subversive of the constitutional government of the United States, and of such a war we now record our disapproval.

Resolved, That in view of the immense power of war demanded by the President and supplied to him by a patriotic people, and hitherto wielded by him according to his own will, with little deference or regard to the opinions and convictions of the very large number, if not majority, of faithful Union citizens in the United States who have doubted or disapproved his policy in the conduct of the war and his extraordinary assumptions of executive power, and in view of the dangers to constitutional liberty and the manifold evils that ever attend civil war, we desire peace, and the replacement under its healthful and benign influence, with the least possible further waste of the blood and treasure of the people, of all the relations and functions of constitutional government, State and federal, now disturbed and endangered; and we therefore deprecate all vindictive and revolutionary measures and policy, military or civil, as tending to divide the Union men of the country, to aggravate the evils and to intensify the animosity of the war and prolong its duration; and we advise, and do cordially invite and pledge our co-operation in negotiations, proposals, and efforts for peace upon the basis of a restoration of the federal Union under the Constitution as it is, leaving to the free constitutional action of the people the questions of amendments of the federal Constitution, and leaving also to the people of each State, as their unquestionable right, the right, and its free exercise, to form, regulate, and control their State constitutions, laws, and domestic institutions in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States.

The same having been read,

Mr. Edgerton moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising thereon, the preamble and resolutions were laid over under the rule.

Mr. Farnsworth, by unanimous consent, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 26) reviving the grade of Lieutenant General in the United States army, reported the same with an amendment, in the nature of a substitute therefor.

Pending the question on the said amendment,

Mr. Farnsworth moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

When,

Mr. Pendleton moved that the further consideration of the bill be postponed until Monday next, the first of February, after the morning hour, and that it be printed.

Whereas certain land grants were made by Congress in the year 1856 to aid in the construction of railroads in the States of Alabama, Florida, Iowa, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, and Wisconsin; and whereas it was provided in the acts making said grants, that in case the roads enumerated therein should not be completed in ten years, that the land should revert to the United States; and whereas several grants were made to States now in rebellion against the government; and whereas application has been, and will continue to be, made to the present Congress for an extension of the time of said grants: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Public Lands be requested to make a thorough investigation of the subject to ascertain the number of miles of roads that have been built by the companies claiming lands under said grants, the number of sections or acres of lands that have been given or transferred to the roads, respectively, for the miles at present completed, the prospect of their completion, and whether it will be just and expedient or not to extend the time of said grants.

Resolved, That the committee be further requested to report to this house, by bill or otherwise, such action in the premises, after a full investigation, as to it shall seem just and for the public interest.

The House then resumed, as the regular order of business, the consideration of the joint resolution (H. Whereas all conscription or other forced service of the citizen to the State is contrary to the genius and principles of republican government and opposed to the principles of self-government, which is the true basis of the American republic; and whereas the laws for conscripting or drafting citizens into the military service of the United States have thus far proved, if not an entire failure, at least ineffectual for the supplying to the government the necessary number of men requisite for the military service in putting down the rebellion; and whereas the principles of equity and justice require in a government like ours, founded on the will of the majority, that the burdens of maintaining and preserving it should fall alike and equally upon all and every of the citizens, the rich as well as the poor, in proportion to their ability to bear the same; and whereas the military is a profession to which men are called as well from the inducements of personal gain and family advantage as from motives of patriotism and hopes of future fame: Therefore, tain articles when few are required, and high on others of which large quantities are required ; and whether the practice of inviting proposals and awarding bids in this manner is required by law ; and that he also inform the House whether any, and if so, what, alterations in the laws relating to the purchase of naval supplies are, in his opinion, necessary.

All the States and Territories having been called for bills on leave,

Mr. Dawes, from the Committee of Elections, to whom were referred the credentials of B. M. Kitchen, claiming to be elected a representative in the 38th Congress from the 7th congressional district in Virginia, and also the memorial of Lewis McKenzie, contesting the right of said Kitchen to a seat as such representative, made a report, accompanied by the following resolutions, viz :

Mr. Arnold moved that it be referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Pending which,

And the question being first put on the motion of Mr. Arnold, it was decided in the affirmative.

So the bill was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

The Speaker next proceeded, as the regular order of business, to call the States and Territories for resolutions.

When

Mr. James S. Brown submitted the following resolution, viz :

Resolved, That the thanks of this house are due to those noble women who, as members of sanitary commissions, ladies' aid societies, and christian commissions, have contributed in labor and means to the relief of our soldiers; that this aid has become necessary, not because Congress is unwilling to meet every demand which justice to our brave men in the field may require, either in the way of bounties, pay, or relief, but because we recognize the fact that the resources of the country in money and credit form a material part of our power to crush out the rebellion, and that the mite bestowed by the poor and the bounty contributed by the rich are material aids in the righteous work before us; that this house recognizes its own duty to respond to the patriotic efforts referred to, and to reserve, so far as possible, the public funds and credit for the uses of the war; that, while acknowledging and encouraging these individual efforts, which have (considered as the results of the labor of the fair hands of our ladies alone) brought important sums, and which at the great northwestern fair at Chicago alone produced $75,000, it would be cruel mockery to those noble women for this house to expend millions upon any schemes, however specious, to which public faith is not already pledged, or not demanded by the immediate necessities of this war; and that, in view of the premises, this house pledges its faith alike to the women of the country, to the men who have liberally contributed of their substance, and to our creditors, that it will pursue a course of rigid economy, and, while exercising wise and cautious liberality toward all objects immediately connected with the suppression of the rebellion, it will strictly refrain from all schemes, whether of internal improvement or otherwise, to which public faith is not already pledged, and which, not materially affecting the war now before us, may constitute a charge either upon the credit or means of the country.

The same having been read,

Mr. James S. Brown moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate arising thereon, it was laid over under the rule.

Mr. Eldridge submitted the following resolution, viz :

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby, required to furnish to this house information as to the amount of moneys received up to this time for commutation by drafted men; also what disposition has been made of said moneys. If substitutes have been purchased for drafted men, how many; where and who have been procured as such substitutes; what sum has been paid for each, and whether for white or black, and how much for each.

The same having been read,

It was laid over one day under the rule.

Mr. James S. Brown submitted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of War be directed to communicate to this house: 1. The number of regiments of negro troops already enlisted, the time when each regiment was organized, and the number of privates in each regiment. 2. The amount paid for bounties, pay, and equipments of each regiment, and all other sums paid out in connexion with their organization. 3. In what battles negro regiments have been engaged, and what regiments have been so engaged, and how many belonging to such regiments have been killed and how many wounded in such battles, discriminating between the different battles.

The same having been read,

It was laid over one day under the rule.

Mr. Cobb, by unanimous consent, introduced a joint resolution (H. Res. 30) tendering the thanks of Congress to Major General W. T. Sherman; which was read a first and second time.

The House having proceeded to its further consideration,

The joint resolution was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time.

Being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time and passed.

Mr. Cobb moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk request the concurrence of the Senate in the said joint resolution.

Mr. Higby submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the President of the United States be requested to communicate to this house all information in the State Department touching the arrest of our consul general to the British North American provinces; and all official communications touching Canadian commerce that have been made by the colonial secretary or other Canadian or British officer since the 1st of November last to our government.

Mr. Shannon, by unanimous consent, presented resolutions of the legislature of the State of California relative to Indian affairs; which were referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. Windom, by unanimous consent, submitted the following preamble and resolution; which were read, considered, and, under the operation of the previous question, agreed to, viz:

Whereas James E. Yeatman, president of the western sanitary commission, who has recently visited the plantations and camps of the freedmen along the Mississippi, has, in reporting his observations of the same, made the following statements, namely: Dr. Littlefield, who is the physician of the Infirmary Farms, is located at the Savage Place, where he has established a freedmen's hospital. He appears to take a very deep interest in this people, and is desirous to aid in improving their condition. He reports he has to furnish medicines and attendance to many of those on leased plantations, especially to those on the places leased by one man who had leased five plantations, whose negroes are greatly neglected and poorly provided for. The testimony of quite a number of persons fully corroborated this statement. One of the freedmen, Henson Jackson, working at Wilton's plantation, said that they get corn wherever they can find it on abandoned plantations; that they frequently have to go as far as Texas bayou; that he has been without bread for days; that four pounds of meat per week is all that is allowed him; that he pays for his flour, and has worked since April without receiving any pay or clothing whatever; that he only receives tickets for actual day's work, to be paid when the crop is sold. Others from the same farm testified to the same thing, and laborers from other plantations gave similar testimony. None received molasses, rice, or beans, and hominy only when they choose to make it themselves. The poor negroes are everywhere greatly depressed at their condition. They all testify that if they were only paid their little wages as they earn them, so that they could purchase clothing, and were furnished with the provisions promised, they could stand it; but to work and get poorly paid, poorly fed, and not doctored when sick, is more than they can endure. Among the thousands whom I questioned none showed the least unwillingness to work. If they could only be paid fair wages they would be contented and happy. They do not realize that they are free men; Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Emancipation be instructed to inquire what, if any, legislation is necessary for the relief and proper management of said freedmen; and that said committee be authorized to report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. Jacob B. Blair submitted the following preamble and resolutions, viz: Whereas the present deplorable civil war was inaugurated and is still carried on by a few desperate but daring men who, without any cause whatever, have not only filled the land with widows and orphans and caused almost untold millions of treasure to be spent, but have put in peril the very life of that government which never deprived them of one solitary right, but which was so mild and beneficent it was only known by the blessings it conferred And whereas Jefferson Davis, the chief of rebels, is reported to have said in a speech delivered in Jackson, Mississippi, in December, 1862: "My only wonder is that we consented to live so long a time in association with such miscreants (referring to the people of the north) and have loved a government rotten to the core. Were it ever to be proposed again to enter into a union with such a people I could no more consent to do it than to trust myself in a den of thieves." And whereas this same high official in the great synagogue of rebeldom has repeatedly since, in his messages to the rebel congress, utterly repudiated the idea of ever ceasing his wicked designs and returning to his allegiance to the government, whose Constitution and laws he has trampled under foot; and has also declared that no compromise would be entertained by him, or those he represents, that did not secure to the States in rebellion their independence and final separation from the United States. And whereas Alexander H. Stephens, the vice-president of the so-called southern confederacy, is reported to have said in a speech delivered in the month of July, 1863, at Charlotte, North Carolina, "As for reconstruction, such a thing was impossible; such an idea must not be tolerated for an instant. Reconstruction would not end the war, but would produce a more horrible war than that in which we are now engaged The only terms on which we can obtain permanent peace is final and complete separation from the north. Rather than submit to anything short of that, let us all resolve to die like men worthy of freedom." And whereas John Letcher, in one of his messages to the rebel legislature of the State of Virginia, declared: "The alliance between us is dissolved, (meaning between the United States and the southern States,) never, I trust, to be renewed, at any time, under any conceivable state of circumstances." And whereas the Richmond Enquirer, one of the organs and advocates of this imaginary southern confederacy, in its issue of January 9, 1863, says: "Separation is inevitable. War has failed to prevent it. Peace cannot stop it. An armistice with propositions for reconstruction by constitutional amendments of conventions of States would very soon reveal the fact that separation was final; and so far as one generation can speak for its successors, it is eternal." And whereas the Richmond Dispatch of January 10, 1863, another organ of the leaders of this wanton and unprovoked rebellion, said in response to a peace and reunion speech, delivered in

New York by the editor of the Express, "That we assure him that the people of the Confederate States would infinitely prefer being the vassals of France or England; nay, they would prefer to be serfs of Russia, to becoming in any manner whatever associated politically or otherwise with the Yankee States." And further, "that President Davis expressed the sentiment of the entire confederacy in his speech the other night, (in Richmond,) when he said 'the people would sooner unite with a nation of hyenas than with the detestable Yankee nation. Anything but that. English colonization, French vassalage, Russian serfdom—all, all are preferable to any association with the Yankees.'" And whereas the Richmond Sentinel, still another advocate of this new-fledged confederacy, in its comments on the proceedings of what is known as the Frank Pierce meeting, held at Concord, New Hampshire, on the 4th of July, 1863, says, "Do the New Hampshire democrats suppose for one moment that we could so much as think of a reunion with such a people? Rather tell one to be wedded to a corpse; rather join hands with the fiend from the pit. The blood of many thousands of martyrs is between us. A thousand feelings of horror repel the idea of a renewal of affection." And whereas the Richmond Whig, another mouth-piece of treason and of crime, in its issue of the 10th of January, 1863, speaking of those who are opposed to breaking up the Union bequeathed to them by their fathers, says, "They are by nature menials, and fitted only for menial duties. They are in open and flagrant insurrection against their natural lords and masters, the gentlemen of the south. In the exercise of their assumed privileges they deport themselves with all the extravagant airs, the insolence, the cruelty, the cowardice and love of rapine, which have ever characterized the revolt of slaves. The former leniency of their masters only serves to aggravate the ferocity of their nature. When they are again reduced to subjection, and taught to know their place, we must take care to put such trammels about them that they will never have an opportunity to play their tricks again." It is, therefore,

1. Resolved, That any attempt on the part of the government of the United States to conciliate the leaders of the present rebellion, or compromise the questions involved, would be but an attempt on the one hand to rob the gallows of its own, and on the other to humiliate and bring into utter contempt this government in the estimation of the civilized world.

2. Resolved, That every State which has ever been is still a State in the Union, and that when this rebellion shall have been put down each of the so-called seceding States will have the same rights, privileges, and immunities under the Constitution as any one of the loyal States, except so far as the holding of African slaves in bondage is affected by the President's proclamation of the 1st of January, 1863, the action of Congress on the subject, or the events of the war.

3. Resolved, That this house utterly repudiate the doctrine advanced by some, that the so-called seceding States have ceased to be States of and in the Union, and have become Territories thereof, or stand in the relation of foreign powers at war therewith.

The same having been read,

Mr. Jacob B. Blair moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising thereon, the preamble and resolutions were laid over under the rule.

Mr. William G. Brown submitted the following preamble and resolutions: Whereas our beloved country, our highly cherished institutions, Constitution, and Union of the States, are all imperilled by a causeless and wicked rebellion: Be it, therefore,

Resolved, That it is the duty of every loyal citizen to give to the government, and to the agents in its employ, both in the cabinet and in the field, all the legitimate aid and comfort in his power in their efforts to put down such rebellion.

Resolved, That, as the rebels began the war, we will prosecute it until the last insurgent is disarmed and the authority of the United States acknowledged over every foot of ground belonging to the republic.

Resolved, That in the prosecution of the war we will use all the military power of the government, but will combine with it all the means of conciliation calculated to give to the government and country an honorable and lasting peace.

Resolved, That it is the duty of the government, so far as it is in its power to give equal protection to all loyal citizens without reference to their locality, whether residing within the seceded or loyal States; and one of the strong incentives to a vigorous prosecution of the war is to rescue our loyal brethren of the rebellious States from the domination of a military despotism.

The same having been read,

Mr. Brown moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Debate then arising thereon, the preamble and resolutions were laid over under the rule.

Mr. Whaley submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs be requested to inquire into the expediency of increasing the pay of the cadets at the Military Academy at West Point, and report by bill or otherwise.

Mr. George E. Cole submitted the following resolution; which was read and referred to the Committee on Commerce, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Treasury be directed to furnish this house with a statement of the amount of moneys paid out of the treasury of the United States to Victor Smith or other parties, in liquidation of donation or pre-emption claims, building or rent of custom-house, or other expenses connected therewith, at Port Angelos, Washington Territory.

The Speaker laid before the House communications from the chief justice and secretary of Dakota, of the board of canvassers of that Territory, relative to the contested election from that Territory; which were referred to the Committee of Elections.

The Speaker also, by unanimous consent, laid before the House communications from the Secretary of the Interior, as follows, viz:

I. Transmitting a statement of balances of appropriations, &c., to the credit of his department; which was referred to the Committee on Expenditures in the Interior Department and ordered to be printed.

II. Transmitting a statement of the contingent expenses of his department during the last fiscal year; which was referred to the same committee and ordered to be printed.

III. Transmitting a statement of the clerks and other persons employed in his department during the year ending December 31, 1863; which was laid on the table and ordered to be printed.

On motion of Mr. Schenck, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union; and after some time spent therein the Speaker resumed the chair, and Mr. Dawes reported that the committee having, according to order, had the special order under consideration, viz: S. 36. An act to amend an act for enrolling and calling out the national forces and for other purposes, approved March 3, 1863, had come to no resolution thereon.

Mr. Morrill moved that the rules be suspended, so as to enable the House to take from the Speaker's table the bill of the House (H. R. 122) to increase the internal revenue, and for other purposes, with the amendments of the Senate thereto.

Pending which,

On motion of Mr. Holman, at 4 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m., the House adjourned.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1864.

The following memorials, petitions, and other papers, were laid upon the Clerk's table, under the 131st rule of the House:

So the House refused to suspend the rules.

Mr. Stevens, from the Committee of Ways and Means, to whom was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 265) supplementary to an act entitled "An act to provide ways and means for the support of the government," approved March 3, 1863—the rules having been suspended for that purpose—reported the same with sundry amendments, and the House proceeded to consider the same.

Pending the question on the said amendments,
Mr. Brooks submitted an additional amendment.

Pending which,

Mr. Stevens moved the previous question; which was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the amendment submitted by Mr. Brooks was disagreed to, and the amendments reported from the Committee of Ways and Means severally agreed to, and the bill ordered to be engrossed and read a third time.

Being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time and passed.

Mr. Stevens moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk request the concurrence of the Senate in the said bill.

Mr. Francis P. Blair, jr., by unanimous consent, submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Navy be requested to communicate to this House the following information: All his instructions relative to the attack upon Charleston, and all his correspondence with Rear-Admiral DuPont relative to that attack previous to the 7th of April, 1863, and subsequent thereto, and all other information possessed by the department or its bureaus growing out of that memorable contest, and all the reports of officers and others relative to iron-clad vessels and their adaptability for naval warfare; any order of the Navy Department relative to withdrawing the iron-clads to the Mississippi or elsewhere. Also, the telegraphic order of the President, dated 13th April, 1863, directing Rear-Admiral DuPont to remain inside of the bar at Charleston, and prevent the enemy from erecting batteries on Morris island, and whether this order was acknowledged and obeyed. Also, the telegraphic order of the President, dated 14th April, 1863, directing Rear-Admiral DuPont and General Hunter to take the batteries on Morris and Sullivan islands, and whether said order was obeyed, or attempted to be obeyed. Also, the order of the Secretary of the Navy, dated 6th June, 1863, directing Rear-Admiral DuPont to co-operate with General Gillmore, and whether said order was obeyed, and whether General Gillmore complained of a want of co-operation on the part of Rear-Admiral DuPont. Also, who devised the plan of attack attempted upon Fort Sumter by Rear-Admiral DuPont on the 7th April, 1863, and whether such plan was communicated to the department previous to its being made, and whether Rear-Admiral DuPont asked for more troops previous to the 7th April, 1863, or protested to the department against making said attack; and whether any order, previous to that date, was given to him to attack Fort Sumter, or in any manner act against his judgment in the operations before Charleston; or whether any suggestions or plans of that officer or requisitions for more ships were refused or declined by the Navy Department previous to his attack upon the defences of Charleston; and whether the port of Charleston is absolutely closed to blockade running since the monitors went inside of the bar.

Mr. Francis P. Blair, jr., moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

The regular call for resolutions having been resumed,

Mr. Dumont submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and, under the operation of the previous question, agreed to, viz:

Resolved, That the select committee to whom was referred the subject of standing rules of the House be, and they are hereby, instructed to inquire into the expediency of providing by a standing rule for an additional standing committee, to be designated a "Committee on the National Bank," and of providing that said committee shall have charge of all proper matters growing out of the act entitled "An act to provide a national currency secured by a pledge of United States stocks, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," and of all proper matters relating to the banks or organized and to be organized in pursuance of said act; and that they report by rule or otherwise.

Mr. Dumont moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. Dumont, on leave, introduced a bill (H. R. 284) to prevent the selling and circulation of counterfeit coin, and of counterfeit and altered treasury notes and postal currency bills; which was read a first and second time and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. Holman, on leave, introduced a bill (H. R. 285) to authorize the State of Indiana to apply certain lands granted by Congress to the education of orphan children of soldiers who die during the present war; which was read a first and second time and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. Dumont, on leave, introduced a bill (H. R. 286) to extend the time for the acceptance of the act entitled "An act donating public lands to the several States and Territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts," approved July 2, 1862, and to amend said act; which was read a first and second time and referred to the Committee on Agriculture.

Mr. Garfield submitted the following resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee on the Conduct of the War be instructed to inquire into and report upon the practical operation and result of the several acts of Congress touching commercial intercourse with the States declared to be in insurrection against the authority of the government, and of the regulations of the Treasury Department, established by the Secretary and approved by the President on the 31st day of March and the 11th day of September, 1863, and of the military orders which have been made from time to time touching such commercial intercourse by generals commanding departments or other officers; also, to ascertain and report in what manner said acts, regulations, and orders have been executed, and especially whether any frauds have been committed or favoritism to individuals or localities shown by the officers or agents of the government employed under the said acts, regulations, or orders; and to inquire into all other matters touching any of the points which affect the public interest or the character of any public servant.

So the resolution was agreed to.

Mr. Stevens moved that the vote last taken be reconsidered, and also moved that the motion to reconsider be laid on the table; which latter motion was agreed to.

Mr. Long submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz:

Whereas history teaches that there never has been a civil war that was not settled in the end by compromise, and inasmuch as no possible harm can result either to the character or dignity of the United States from an honest effort to stop the effusion of fraternal blood, and restore the Union by the return of the States in rebellion to their allegiance under the Constitution; and whereas the President, with a full knowledge of the lessons taught by history in relation to all civil wars, in his inaugural address said, "suppose you go to war, you cannot fight always; and when, after much loss on both sides, and no gain on either, you cease fighting, the identical old questions as to terms of intercourse are again upon you;" and whereas we now have an armistice, decreed by the Almighty, and executed for the past two months by the snows and ice of winter, thereby affording time and opportunity for reflection upon the past three years of horrible, relentless, and destructive civil war with all its calamities, and a prospective view of increased horrors in the approaching conflicts; and whereas a preamble and resolutions were, on the 7th of February, instant, introduced in the house of representatives of the confederate congress at Richmond denying the statement of the President of the United States "that no propositions for peace had been made to the United States by the confederate States," and affirming that such propositions were prevented from being made by the President of the United States, in that he had refused to hear, or even to receive, two commissioners appointed to treat expressly for peace: Therefore, be it

Resolved, That the President be, and he is hereby, most earnestly, but respectfully, requested to appoint Franklin Pierce, of New Hampshire; Millard Fillmore, of New York; Thomas Ewing, of Ohio, and such other persons as the President may see proper to select, as commissioners on behalf of the United States, who shall be empowered to meet a commission of like number when appointed for the same object on behalf of the Confederate States, at such time and place as may be agreed upon, for the purpose of ascertaining, before the renewal of hostilities shall have again commenced, whether the war shall not now cease, and the Union be restored by the return of all the States to their allegiance and their rights under the Constitution.

Mr. Schenck submitted the following series of resolutions, viz:

Resolved, That the present war which this government is carrying on against armed insurrectionists and others, banded together under the name of "southern confederacy," was brought on by a wicked and wholly unjustifiable rebellion, and all those engaged in or aiding or encouraging it are public enemies, and should be treated as such.

Resolved, That this rebellion shall be effectually put down; and that, to prevent the recurrence of such rebellions in future, the causes which led to this one must be permanently removed.

Resolved, That in this struggle which is going on for the saving of our country and free government, there is no middle ground on which any good citizen or true patriot can stand; neutrality, or indifference, or anything short of a hearty support of the government, being a crime where the question is between loyalty and treason.

Mr. Driggs, by unanimous consent, submitted the following preamble and resolution; which were read, considered, and agreed to, viz:

Whereas our home-manufactured article of salt is heavily taxed to support the government, while the cost of manufacturing is largely increased, and the sales necessarily diminished by reason of the competition of foreign salt, which pays no more duty than was exacted before the increased tax was imposed upon the home article; and whereas we believe it to be the duty of Congress, while devising ways and means to meet the extraordinary demands upon the treasury, to see that no unjust discriminations are made, so that foreign manufacturers may derive a benefit from the misfortunes of our own: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee of Ways and Means be instructed to inquire into the justice and expediency of levying an increased duty of ten cents per bushel on all salt imported into the United States, or such other amount as they may deem just, and to report to this house by bill otherwise.

Mr. Brandegee submitted a resolution, which he subsequently modified to read as follows, viz:

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives, That the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives be authorized to close the present session by adjourning their respective houses on Tuesday, the 31st day of May next, at 12 o'clock meridian.

Mr. Williams submitted the following resolutions; which were read, and debate arising thereon, they were laid over under the rule :

Resolved, That the existing relation between the Union and the rebel States constitutes a condition of public war, with all the consequences attaching thereto under the law of nature and of nations.

Resolved, That the appeal of the rebel States from the jurisdiction of the ordinary tribunals established by the Constitution to the arbitrament of the sword has not, however, withdrawn the case beyond the purview of the Constitution, which, in conferring the war power on the general government, has made the law of war the rule of conduct in the prosecution and adjustment of the pending controversy.

Resolved, That while the rebel States are, by that law and by the solemn recognition thereof in the proclamation made by the President of the United States on the 16th of August, A. D. 1861, under and in pursuance of the authority conferred on him by the act of Congress of the 13th of July of the same year, interdicting all commercial intercourse between their citizens and those of the loyal States, in the attitude of belligerents, and outside of the Union as States, by construction of law as well as in point of fact, and have thereby either abdicated or forfeited their rights to membership therein, the jurisdiction and powers of the government over their territory and citizens continue unimpaired, and the latter are still amenable to the law and the judicial tribunals of the United States for their treason and other crimes against the same.

Resolved, That so long as those States continue under the armed occupation of the forces of the United States employed in suppressing the rebellion against its authority, the local laws are necessarily subordinated, and the functions of the civil authorities so far suspended therein as to prevent the exercise of all the rights arising out of their relations to this government, and to disable them from electing members of either branch of Congress, or electors for the choice of a President of the United States.

Resolved, That the occupation of these States by the armed forces of the United States, either under military commanders or provisional governors appointed by the Executive, resting for its lawfulness upon the condition of insurrection existing therein, is a purely military one, and ought to determine with the necessity which produced it.

Resolved, That as soon as the rebellion is suppressed in any of the revolting States, by the reconquest and occupation thereof by the armies of the United States, and the same are so tranquilized as to furnish adequate assurance against the recurrence of disturbance therein, it will become the duty of the President to communicate the fact to Congress in order that it may take the proper measures for the reorganization of the civil governments and the re-establishment of the civil functionaries therein, and prescribe such terms as it may deem wise and proper and consistent with the public safety for the readmission of those districts as States of this Union.

Resolved, That it is the exclusive right of the legislative power of the government to say upon what terms those Territories shall be allowed to return to the Union; and that in the adjustment of the existing controversy in the government ad interim of the reconquered territory, and in the arrangement of the terms of reorganization and readmission, it will be entirely within their competency to punish the treason of individuals and provide indemnity for the expenses of the war and security against any future outbreak of the like kind by removing its causes and confiscating absolutely the property and estate of the guilty authors and abettors thereof.

Mr. John H. Rice submitted the following resolutions; which were read, and debate arising thereon, were laid over under the rule, viz:

Whereas the vital principle of our national life emanated from and survives in the grand and Heaven-inspired declaration "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness;" and whereas the government of the United States was established and the Constitution adopted in the earnest desire and confident expectation that both would speedily and finally operate in harmony with said "declaration," and thereby secure to all native and naturalized citizens equal civil rights and privileges, regardless of all conditions of birth, race, descent, worldly possessions, or religious faith; and whereas the system of American slavery has been and is utterly subversive and destructive of the aforesaid principles, desires, and expectations, and has been the fruitful progenitor of all manner of evils—social, moral, and political—producing cruelty and oppression to the slave, demoralization and degradation to the free laborer, and brutalization and arrogance in the slave-driver and the slave-master, and has finally culminated in robbery and murder, rebellion and civil war, and has thus conclusively demonstrated that it cannot be longer tolerated with safety to the government and peace to the Union, and that justice, sound morality, and national unity, each and all, demand its entire extinction; and whereas our people of African descent have in the present war been more unanimous in their loyalty to the government and their devotedness to the Union than any other class, and have, at the call of Congress and the Executive, sprung to arms to protect the one and maintain the other, and have bravely and nobly vindicated their courage and their manhood upon the land and upon the water—on the battle-field and on the gun-deck; and whereas the freedmen in the District of Columbia and elsewhere in the United States have, by their obedience to the laws, their willingness to labor, their desire for improvement, and their ability to perform military service, evinced their capabilities as citizens and soldiers, and thus practically reversed and annihilated the monstrous judicial dictum and heartless party dogma that "they have no rights which white men are bound to respect:" Therefore,

Resolved, That the Congress of the United States should, by positive and effective legislation, and in accordance with the true theory of our republican form of government, guarantee and secure equality of civil rights and privileges to all classes of persons residing within the District of Columbia and the Territories, and wherever else the government of the United States possesses sole and exclusive jurisdiction, who are required and made liable, under the Constitution and the laws, to contribute to the support and maintenance of the government by taxation and military service, and in like manner to protect, secure, and defend all persons in life, liberty, and lawful pursuits, throughout the length and breadth of the republic.

Resolved, That American slavery, having engendered the rebellion and sustained and prolonged the war, by which uncounted thousands of the best citizens of the republic have been made to suffer and bleed and die, and being subversive of natural right and justice, contrary to the spirit of our institutions, destructive of the best interests of society, disgraceful to our civilization, dangerous to the republic, and accursed of God and all good men, should not be longer tolerated, but should, by force of law in the adhering States and the power of arms in the rebellious States, be forever abolished and exterminated.

Resolved, That all statutes, legislative acts, and city ordinances, having the force of law, in the District of Columbia and the organized Territories of the United States, whereby persons of African descent residing therein are deprived of their civil rights and restrained of their just privileges, ought in justice to be repealed and declared void.

Mr. J. R. Morris submitted the following resolution; which was read, considered, and agreed to:

The same having been read,

Mr. Smith moved the previous question on its adoption; which was seconded.

Resolved, That ten thousand extra copies of the various official reports of Major General William S. Rosecrans, during this war, be printed for the use of this house.

II. Recommending an appropriation for the Quapaw Indians (refugees) now in Kansas; which was referred to the Committee of Ways and Means and ordered to be printed.

The Speaker also, by unanimous consent, laid before the House the following message this day received from the President of the United States, viz:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

On the 25th day of November, 1862, a convention for the mutual adjustment of claims pending between the United States and Ecuador was signed at Quito by the plenipotentiaries of the contracting parties. A copy is herewith enclosed.

This convention already ratified by this government has been sent to Quito for the customary exchange of ratifications, which it is not doubted will be promptly effected. As the stipulations of the instrument require the commissioners who are to be appointed pursuant to its provisions to meet at Guayaquil within ninety days after such exchange, it is desirable that the legislation necessary to give effect to the convention on the part of the United States should anticipate the usual course of proceeding. I therefore invite the early attention of Congress to the subject.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

WASHINGTON, March 14, 1864.

The same having been read,

Ordered, That it be referred to the Committee of Ways and Means and printed.

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

“That there shall be established in the Treasury Department a separate bureau, which shall be charged with the execution of this and all other laws that may be passed by Congress respecting the issue and regulation of a national currency secured by United States bonds. The chief officer of the said bureau shall be denominated the Comptroller of the Currency, and shall be under the general direction of the Secretary of the Treasury. He shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and shall hold his office for the term of five years unless sooner removed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate; he shall receive an annual salary of five thousand dollars; he shall have a competent deputy, appointed by the Secretary, whose salary shall be two thousand five hundred dollars, and who shall possess the power and perform the duties attached by law to the office of Comptroller during a vacancy in such office and during his absence or inability; he shall employ, from time to time, the necessary clerks to discharge such duties as he shall direct, which clerks shall be appointed and classified by the Secretary of the Treasury in the manner now provided by law. Within fifteen days from the time of notice of his appointment the Comptroller shall take and subscribe the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution and laws of the United States; and he shall give to the United States a bond in the penalty of one hundred thousand dollars, with not less than two responsible freeholders as sureties, to be approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, conditioned for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. The Deputy Comptroller so appointed shall also take the oath of office prescribed by the Constitution and laws of the United States, and shall give a like bond in the penalty of fifty thousand dollars. The Comptroller and Deputy Comptroller shall not, either directly or indirectly, be interested in any association issuing national currency under the provisions of this act.

“SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall devise a seal, with suitable inscriptions, for his office, a description of which, with a certificate of approval by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State with an impression thereof, which shall thereupon become the seal of office of the Comptroller of the Currency, and the same may be renewed when necessary. Every certificate, assignment, and conveyance executed by the Comptroller, in pursuance of any authority conferred on him by law, and sealed with his seal of office, shall be received in evidence in all places and courts whatsoever; and all copies of papers in the office of the Comptroller, certified by him and authenticated by the said seal, shall in all cases be evidence equally and in like manner as the original. An impression of such seal directly on the paper shall be as valid as if made on wax or wafer.

"SEC. 3. And be it further enacted, That there shall be assigned to the Comptroller of the Currency by the Secretary of the Treasury suitable rooms in the treasury building for conducting the business of the Currency Bureau, in which shall be safe and secure fire-proof vaults, in which it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to deposit and safely keep all the plates and other valuable things belonging to his department; and the Comptroller shall from time to time furnish the necessary furniture, stationery, fuel, lights, and other proper conveniences for the transaction of the said business.

"SEC. 4. And be it further enacted, That the term 'United States bonds,' as used in this act, shall be construed to mean all registered bonds now issued, or that may hereafter be issued, on the faith of the United States, by the Secretary of the Treasury in pursuance of law.

"SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That associations for carrying on the business of banking may be formed by any number of persons, not less in any case than five, who shall enter into articles of association, which shall specify in general terms the object for which the association is formed, and may contain any other provisions, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, which the association may see fit to adopt for the regulation of the business of the association and the conduct of its affairs, which said articles shall be signed by the persons uniting to form the association, and a copy of them forwarded to the Comptroller of the Currency, to be filed and preserved in his office.

"SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That persons uniting to form such an association shall, under their hands, make an organization certificate, which shall specify—

"First. The name assumed by such association, which name shall be subject to the approval of the Comptroller.

"Second. The place where its operations of discount and deposit are to be carried on, designating the State, Territory, or district, and also the particular city, town, or village.

"Third. The amount of its capital stock, and the number of shares into which the same shall be divided.

"Fourth. The names and places of residence of the shareholders, and the number of shares held by each of them.

"Fifth. A declaration that said certificate is made to enable such persons to avail themselves of the advantages of this act.

"The said certificate shall be acknowledged before a judge of some court of record or a notary public; and the acknowledgment thereof, authenticated by the seal of such court or notary, shall be transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, who shall record and carefully preserve the same in his office. Copies of such certificate, duly certified by the Comptroller and authenticated by his seal of office, shall be legal and sufficient evidence in all courts and places within the United States, or the jurisdiction of the government thereof, of the existence of such association, and of every other matter or thing which could be proved by the production of the original certificate.

"SEC. 7. And be it further enacted, That no association shall be organized under this act with a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, nor, in a city whose population exceeds fifty thousand persons, with a less capital than two hundred thousand dollars: Provided, That banks with a capital of not less than fifty thousand dollars may, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, be organized in any place the population of which does not exceed six thousand inhabitants.

“SEC. 8. And be it further enacted, That every association formed pursuant to the provisions of this act shall, from the date of the execution of its organization certificate, be a body corporate, but shall transact no business except such as may be incidental to its organization and necessarily preliminary, until authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency, to commence the business of banking. Such association shall have power to adopt a corporate seal, and shall have succession by the name designated in its organization certificate, for the period of twenty years from its organization, unless sooner dissolved according to the provisions of its articles of association, or by the act of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock, or unless the franchise shall be forfeited by a violation of this act; by such name it may make contracts, sue and be sued, complain and defend, in any court of law and equity as fully as natural persons; it may elect or appoint directors, and by its board of directors appoint a president, vice-president, cashier, and other officers, define their duties, require bonds of them and fix the penalty thereof, dismiss said officers or any of them at pleasure, and appoint others to fill their places, and exercise under this act all such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, checks, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; by receiving deposits; by buying and selling gold and silver coin and bullion; by loaning money on real and personal security; by obtaining, issuing, and circulating notes according to the provisions of this act; and its board of directors shall also have power to define and regulate by by-laws, not inconsistent with the provisions of this act, the manner in which its stock shall be transferred, its directors elected or appointed, its officers appointed, its property transferred, and its general business conducted, and all the privileges granted by this act to associations organized under it shall be exercised and enjoyed, and its usual business shall be transacted at an office or banking-house located in the place specified in its organization certificate.

“SEC. 9. And be it further enacted, That the affairs of every association shall be managed by not less than five directors, one of whom shall be the president. Every director shall, during his whole term of service, be a citizen of the United States; and at least three-fourths of the directors shall have resided in the State in which such association is located one year next preceding their election as directors, and be residents of said State during their continuance in office. Each director shall own, in his own right, at least ten shares of the capital stock of the association of which he is a director. Each director, when appointed or elected, shall take an oath that he will, so far as the duty devolves on him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of such association, and will not knowingly violate, or willingly permit to be violated, any of the provisions of this act, and that he is the bona fide owner, in his own right, of the number of shares of stock required by this act, subscribed by him, or standing in his name on the books of the association, and that the same is not hypothecated, or in any way pledged, as security for any loan obtained from, or debt owing to the association of which he is a director; which oath, subscribed by himself, and certified by the officer before whom it is taken, shall be immediately transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, and by him filed and preserved in his office.

“SEC. 10. And be it further enacted, That the directors of any association first elected or appointed shall hold their places until their successors shall be elected and qualified. All subsequent elections shall be held annually, on such day in the month of January as may be specified in the articles of association; and the directors so elected shall hold their places for one year, and until their successors are elected and qualified. But any director ceasing to be the owner of the requisite amount of stock, or having in any other manner become disqualified, shall thereby vacate his place. Any vacancy in the board shall be filled by appointment by the remaining directors. The director so appointed shall hold his place until the next election; and if from any cause an election of directors shall not be made at the time appointed, the association shall not for that cause be dissolved, but an election may be held on any subsequent day, thirty days' notice thereof in all cases having been given in a newspaper published in the city, town, or county in which the association is located; and if no newspaper is published in such city, town or county, such notice shall be published in a newspaper published nearest thereto. If the articles of association do not fix the day on which the election shall be held, or if the election should not be held on the day fixed, the day for the election shall be designated by the board of directors in their by-laws, or otherwise.

"SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That in all elections of directors, and in deciding all questions at meetings of shareholders, each shareholder shall be entitled to one vote on each share of stock held by him. Shareholders may vote by proxies duly authorized in writing; but no officer, clerk, teller, or bookkeeper of such association shall act as proxy; and no shareholder whose liability is past due and unpaid shall be allowed to vote.

"SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That the capital stock of any association formed under this act shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, and be deemed personal property and transferable on the books of the association in such manner as may be prescribed in the by-laws or articles of association; and every person becoming a shareholder by such transfer shall, in proportion to his shares, succeed to all the rights and liabilities of the prior holder of such shares, and no change shall be made in the articles of association by which the rights, remedies, or security of the existing creditors of the association shall be impaired. The shareholders of each association formed under the provisions of this act, and of each existing bank or banking association that may accept the provisions of this act, shall be held individually responsible, equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such association to the extent of the amount of their stock therein at the par value thereof, in addition to the amount invested in such shares. And the Comptroller shall have authority to withhold from an association his certificate authorizing the commencement of business, whenever he shall have reason to suppose that the shareholders thereof have formed the same for any other than the legitimate objects contemplated by this act.

"SEC. 13. And be it further enacted. That it shall be lawful for any association formed under this act, by its articles of association, to provide for an increase of its capital from time to time as may be deemed expedient, subject to the limitations of this act: Provided, That the maximum of such increase in the articles of association shall be determined by the Comptroller of the Currency, and no increase of the capital beyond the maximum so determined shall thereafter be made without the consent of the Comptroller; and no increase of capital shall be valid until the whole amount of such increase shall be paid in, and notice thereof shall have been transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, and his certificate obtained specifying the amount of such increase of capital stock, and that the same has been duly paid to such association. And every association shall have power, by the vote of shareholders owning two-thirds of its capital stock, to reduce the capital of such association to any sum not below the amount required by this act, in the formation of associations: Provided, That by no such reduction shall its capital be brought below the amount of its outstanding circulation, nor shall any such reduction be made until the amount of the proposed reduction has been reported to the Comptroller of the Currency and his approval thereof obtained.

"SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That at least fifty per centum of the capital stock of every association shall be paid in before it shall be authorized to commence business, and the remainder of the capital stock of such association shall be paid in instalments of at least ten per centum each, on the whole amount of the capital, as frequently as one instalment at the end of each succeeding month, from the time it shall be authorized by the Comptroller to commence business; and the payment of each instalment shall be certified to the Comptroller under oath by the president or cashier of the association.

"SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That if any shareholder or his assignee shall fail to pay any instalment on the stock when the same is required by the foregoing section to be paid, the directors of such association may sell the stock held by such delinquent shareholder, at public auction, having given three weeks' previous notice thereof in a newspaper published and of general circulation in the city or county where the association is located, and if no newspaper is published in said city or county, then in a newspaper published nearest thereto, to any person who will pay the highest price therefor, and not less than the amount then due thereon, with the expenses of advertisement and sale; and the excess, if any, shall be paid to the delinquent shareholder. If no bidder can be found who will pay for such stock the amount due thereon to the association, and the costs of advertisement and sale, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the association, and such stock shall be sold as the directors may order, within six months from the time of such forfeiture, and if not sold it shall be cancelled and deducted from the capital stock of the association; and if such cancellation and reduction shall reduce the capital of the association below the minimum of capital required by this act, the capital stock shall, within thirty days from the date of such cancellation, be brought up to the requirements of the act; in default of which a receiver may be appointed to close up the business of the association according to the provisions of the fiftieth section of this act.

"SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That every association, after having complied with the provisions of this act, preliminary to the commencement of banking business under its provisions, and before it shall be authorized to commence business, shall transfer and deliver to the Treasurer of the United States any United States registered bonds bearing interest to an amount not less than thirty thousand dollars nor less than one-third of the capital stock paid in, which bonds shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, and by him safely kept in his office until the same shall be otherwise disposed of, in pursuance of the provisions of this act; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to receive and cancel any United States coupon bonds, and to issue in lieu thereof registered bonds of like amount, bearing a like rate of interest, and having the same time to run; and the deposit of bonds shall be, by every association, increased as its capital may be paid up or increased, so that every association shall at all times have on deposit with the Treasurer registered United States bonds to the amount of at least one-third of its capital stock actually paid in: Provided, That nothing in this section shall prevent an association that may desire to close up its business and dissolve its organization from taking up its bonds upon returning to the Comptroller its circulating notes in the proportion hereinafter named in this act.

"SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That whenever a certificate shall have been transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, as provided in this act, and the association transmitting the same shall notify the Comptroller that at least fifty per centum of its capital stock has been paid in as aforesaid, and that such association has complied with all the provisions of this act required to be complied with before such association shall be authorized to commence the business of banking, the Comptroller shall examine into the condition of such association, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each of the directors of such association, and the amount of the capital stock of which each is the bona fide owner, and generally whether such association has complied with all the requirements of this act to entitle it to engage in the business of banking; and shall cause to be made, and attested by the oaths of a majority of the directors and by the president or cashier of such association, a statement of all the facts necessary to enable the Comptroller to determine whether such association is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking under this act

"SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That if, upon a careful examination of the facts so reported, and of any other facts which may come to the knowledge of the Comptroller, whether by means of a special commission appointed by him for the purpose of inquiring into the condition of such association or otherwise, it shall appear that such association is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, the Comptroller shall give to such association a certificate, under his hand and official seal, that such association has complied with all the provisions of this act required to be complied with before being entitled to commence the business of banking under it, and that such association is authorized to commence said business accordingly; and it shall be the duty of the association to cause said certificate to be published in some newspaper published in the city or county where the association is located, for at least sixty days next after the issuing thereof: Provided, That if no newspaper is published in such city or county, the certificate shall be published in a newspaper published nearest thereto.

"SEC. 19. And be it further enacted, That all transfers of United States bonds which shall be made by any association under the provisions of this act shall be made to the Treasurer of the United States, with a memorandum written or printed on each bond, and signed by the cashier or some other officer of the association making the deposit, or by the Comptroller of the Currency, or by a clerk appointed by him for that purpose, stating that it is held in trust for the association on whose behalf such transfer is made, and as security for the redemption and payment of any circulating notes that have been or may be delivered to such association. No assignment or transfer of any such bonds by the Treasurer shall be deemed valid or of binding force and effect unless countersigned by the Comptroller of the Currency. It shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to keep in his office a book in which shall be entered the name of every association from whose accounts such transfer of bonds is made by the Treasurer, and the name of the party to whom such transfer is made; and the par value of the bonds so transferred shall be entered therein; and it shall be the duty of the Comptroller, immediately upon countersigning and entering the same, to advise by mail the association from whose account such transfer was made of the kind of bonds and the amount thereof so transferred.

"SEC. 20. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to countersign and enter in the book, in the manner aforesaid, every transfer or assignment of any bonds held by the Treasurer presented for his signature; and the Comptroller shall have at all times during office hours access to the books of the Treasurer, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of the transfer or assignment presented to him to countersign; and the Treasurer shall have the like access to the book above mentioned, kept by the Comptroller, during office hours, to ascertain the correctness of the entries in the same; and the Comptroller shall also at all times have access to the bonds on deposit with the Treasurer, to ascertain their amount and condition.

"SEC. 21. And be it further enacted, That upon the transfer and delivery of bonds to the Treasurer, as provided in the foregoing section, the association making the same shall be entitled to receive from the Comptroller of the Currency circulating notes of different denominations, in blank, registered and countersigned as hereinafter provided, equal in amount to ninety per centum of the current market value of the United States bonds so transferred and delivered, but not exceeding ninety per centum of the amount of said bonds at the par value thereof, if bearing interest at the rate of six per centum, and not exceeding eighty-five per centum of the par value of the bonds deposited, if bearing interest at the rate of five per centum; and at no time shall the total amount of such notes, issued to any such association, exceed the amount at such time actually paid in of its capital stock.

"SEC. 22. And be it further enacted, That the entire amount of notes for circulation to be issued under this act shall not exceed three hundred millions of dollars. In order to furnish suitable notes for circulation, the Comptroller of the Currency is hereby authorized and required, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, to cause plates and dies to be engraved, in the best manner to guard against counterfeiting and fraudulent alterations, and to have printed therefrom, and numbered, such quantity of circulating notes, in blank, of the denominations of one dollar, two dollars, three dollars, five dollars, ten dollars, twenty dollars, fifty dollars, one hundred dollars, five hundred dollars, and one thousand dollars, as may be required to supply, under this act, the associations entitled to receive the same; which notes shall express upon their face that they are secured by United States bonds, deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, by the written or engraved signatures of the Treasurer and Register, and by the imprint of the seal of the treasury; and shall also express upon their face the promise of the association receiving the same to pay on demand, attested by the signatures of the president or vice-president and cashier. And the said notes shall bear such devices and such other statements, and shall be in such form, as the Secretary of the Treasury shall, by regulation, direct: Provided, That not more than one-sixth part of the notes furnished to an association shall be of a less denomination than five dollars, and that after specie payments shall be resumed no association shall be furnished with notes of a less denomination than five dollars.

"SEC. 23. And be it further enacted, That after any such association shall have caused its promise to pay such notes on demand to be signed by the president or vice-president and cashier thereof, in such manner as to make them obligatory promissory notes, payable on demand, at its place of business, such association is hereby authorized to issue and circulate the same as money; and the same shall be received at par in all parts of the United States in payment of taxes, excises, public lands, and all other dues to the United States, except for duties on imports; and also for all salaries and other debts and demands owing by the United States to individuals, corporations, and associations within the United States, except interest on the public debt. And no such association shall issue post notes or any other notes to circulate as money than such as are authorized by the foregoing provisions of this act.

"SEC. 24. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to receive worn-out or mutilated circulating notes issued by any such banking association, and also, on due proof of the loss or destruction of any such circulating notes, to deliver in place thereof to such association other blank circulating notes to an equal amount. And such worn-out or mutilated notes, after a memorandum shall have been entered in the proper books, in accordance with such regulations as may be established by the Comptroller, as well as all circulating notes which shall have been paid or surrendered to be cancelled, shall be burned to ashes in presence of three persons, one to be appointed by the Secretary of the Treasury, one by the Comptroller of the Currency, and one by the Treasurer of the United States, under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe. And a certificate of such burning, signed by the parties so appointed, shall be made in the books of the Comptroller, and a duplicate thereof forwarded to the association whose notes are thus cancelled.

"SEC. 25. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of either the president or cashier of every banking association having bonds deposited in the office of the Treasurer of the United States, once or oftener in each fiscal year, and at such time or times during the ordinary business hours as said officer or officers may select, to examine and compare the bonds so pledged with the books of the Comptroller and the accounts of the association, and, if found correct, to execute to the said Treasurer a certificate setting forth the different kinds and the amounts thereof, and that the same are in the possession and custody of the Treasurer at the date of such certificate. Such examination may be made by an agent of such association, duly appointed in writing for that purpose, whose certificate before mentioned shall be of like force and validity as if executed by such president or cashier.

"SEC. 26. And be it further enacted, That the bonds transferred to and deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, as hereinbefore provided, by any banking association for the security of its circulating notes, shall be held exclusively for that purpose, until such notes shall be redeemed, except as provided in this act; but the Comptroller of the Currency shall give to any such banking association powers of attorney to receive and appropriate to its own use the interest on the bonds which shall have been so transferred to the Treasurer by it; but such powers shall become inoperative whenever such banking association shall fail to redeem its circulating notes as aforesaid. And said Comptroller may direct the return of any of said bonds to the banking association which transferred the same, upon the surrender to him and the cancellation of a proportionate amount of such circulating notes: Provided, That the remaining bonds which shall have been transferred by the banking association offering to surrender circulating notes shall be equal to the amount required for the circulating notes not surrendered by such banking association, and shall not diminish the amount of bonds in the hands of the Treasurer below the amount required to be kept on deposit with him by this act: And provided, That there shall have been no failure by such association to redeem its circulating notes, and that there shall have been no other violation by such association of any of the provisions of this act for the security of the creditors of such association; nor shall the Treasurer be required to surrender such bonds in fractional sums of less than one thousand dollars. And if, at any time after said bonds shall be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, as aforesaid, the market or cash value shall be reduced below the amount of the circulation issued for the same, the Comptroller of the Currency is hereby authorized to demand and receive the amount of such depreciation in other United States bonds at cash value, or in money, from the association receiving said bills, to be deposited with the Treasurer of the United States as long as such depreciation continues.

"SEC. 27. And be it further enacted, That it shall be unlawful for any officer acting under the provisions of this act to countersign or deliver to any association, or to any other company or person, any circulating notes contemplated by this act, except as hereinbefore provided, and in accordance with the true intent and meaning of this act. And any officer who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a high misdemeanor, and on conviction thereof shall be punished by fine not exceeding double the amount so countersigned and delivered, and imprisonment not less than one year or not exceeding fifteen years, at the discretion of the court in which he shall be tried.

"SEC. 28. And be it further enacted, That it shall be lawful for any such association to purchase, hold, and convey real estate as follows:

"First. Such as shall be necessary for its immediate accommodation in the transaction of its business.

"Second. Such as shall be mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for loans made by such association, in the usual course of its banking business, or for money due thereto.

"Third. Such as shall be conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings.

"Fourth. Such as it shall purchase at sales under judgments, decrees, or mortgages held by such association, or shall purchase to secure debts due to said association.

"Such association shall not purchase or hold real estate in any other case or for any other purpose than as specified in this section.

"SEC. 29. And be it further enacted, That the total liabilities to any association, of any person, or of any company, corporation, or firm, for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed one-tenth part of the amount of the capital stock of such association actually paid in: Provided, That the discount of bona fide bills of exchange drawn against actually existing values, and the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person or persons, corporation, or firm negotiating the same, shall not be considered as money borrowed.

"SEC. 30. And be it further enacted, That every association may take, receive, reserve, and charge on any loan or discount made, or upon any note, bill of exchange, or other evidences of debt, interest at a rate not exceeding seven per centum per annum; and such interest may be taken in advance, reckoning the days for which the note, bill, or other evidence of debt has to run. And the knowingly taking, receiving, reserving, or charging a rate of interest greater than aforesaid, shall be held and adjudged a forfeiture of the entire interest which the note, bill, or other evidence of debt carries with it, or which has been agreed to be paid thereon. And in case a greater rate of interest has been paid, the person or persons paying the same, or their legal representatives, may recover back, in any action of debt, twice the amount of the interest thus paid, from the association taking or receiving the same: Provided, That such action is commenced within two years from the time the usurious transaction occurred. But the purchase, discount, or sale of a bona fide bill of exchange, payable at another place than the place of such purchase, discount, or sale, at not more than the current rate of exchange for sight drafts in addition to the interest, shall not be considered as taking or receiving a greater rate of interest.

"SEC. 31. And be it further enacted, That every association in the cities hereinafter named shall, at all times, have on hand, in lawful money of the United States, an amount equal to at least twenty-five per centum of the aggregate amount of its notes in circulation and its deposits ; and every other association shall, at all times, have on hand, in lawful money of the United States, an amount equal to at least fifteen per centum of the aggregate amount of its notes in circulation, and of its deposits. And whenever the lawful money of any association in any of the cities hereinafter named shall be below the amount of twenty-five per centum of its circulation and deposits, and whenever the lawful money of any other association shall be below fifteen per centum of its circulation and deposits, such association shall not increase its liabilities by making any new loans or discounts otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange payable at sight, nor make any dividend of its profits until the required proportion between the aggregate amount of its outstanding notes of circulation and its deposits and its lawful money of the United States shall be restored : Provided, That three-fifths of said fifteen per centum may consist of balances due to an association available for the redemption of its circulating notes from associations approved by the Comptroller of the Currency, organized under this act, in the cities of Saint Louis, Louisville, Chicago, Detroit, Milwaukee, New Orleans, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Pittsburg, Buffalo, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Boston, New York, Albany, San Francisco, and Portland : Provided, also, That clearing-house certificates, representing specie or lawful money specially deposited for the purpose of any clearing-house association, shall be deemed to be lawful money in the possession of any association belonging to such clearing house holding and owning such certificate, and shall be considered to be a part of the lawful money which such association is required to have under the foregoing provisions of this section : Provided, That the cities of Charleston and Richmond may be added to the list of cities in the national associations of which other associations may keep three-fifths of their lawful money, whenever, in the opinion of the Comptroller of the Currency, the condition of the southern States will warrant it. And it shall be competent for the Comptroller of the Currency to notify any association, whose lawful money reserve as aforesaid shall be below the amount to be kept on hand as aforesaid, to make good such reserve ; and if such association shall fail for thirty days thereafter so to make good its reserve of lawful money of the United States, the Comptroller may, with the concurrence of the Secretary of the Treasury, appoint a receiver to wind up the business of such association, as provided in this act.

"SEC. 32. And be it further enacted, That each association shall select, subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, an association in either of the cities named in the preceding section at which it will redeem its circulating notes at par ; and the Comptroller shall give public notice of the names of the associations so selected at which redemptions are to be made by the respective associations, and of any change that may be made by any association in the association at which it will redeem its notes. If any association shall fail either to make the selection or to redeem its notes, the Comptroller of the Currency may, upon receiving satisfactory evidence thereof, appoint a receiver, in the manner provided for in this act, to wind up its affairs : Provided, That nothing in this section shall relieve any association from its liability to redeem its circulating notes at its own counter, at par, in lawful money on demand.

"SEC. 33. And be it further enacted, That the directors of any association may, semi-annually, each year, declare a dividend of so much of the net profits of the association as they shall judge expedient ; but each association shall, before the declaration of a dividend, carry one-tenth part of its net profits of the preceding half year to its surplus fund until the same shall amount to twenty per centum of its capital stock.

"SEC. 34. And be it further enacted, That every association shall make to the Comptroller of the Currency a report, according to the form which may be prescribed by him, verified by the oath or affirmation of the president or cashier of such association; which report shall exhibit in detail, and under appropriate heads, the resources and liabilities of the association before the commencement of business on the morning of the first Monday of the months of January, April, July, and October of each year, and shall transmit the same to the Comptroller within five days thereafter. And any bank failing to make and transmit such report shall be subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each day after five days that such report is delayed beyond that time. And the Comptroller shall publish abstracts of said reports in a newspaper to be designated by him for that purpose in the city of Washington, and the separate report of each association shall be published in a newspaper in the place where such association is established, or if there be no newspaper at such place, then in a newspaper published at the nearest place thereto, at the expense of the association making such report. In addition to the quarterly reports required by this section, every association shall, on the first Tuesday of each month, make to the Comptroller of the Currency a statement, under the oath of the president or cashier, showing the condition of the association making such statement, on the morning of the day next preceding the date of such statement, in respect to the following items and particulars, to wit: average amount of loans and discounts, specie, and other lawful money belonging to the association, deposits and circulation. And associations in other places than those cities named in the thirty-first section of this act shall also return the amount due them available for the redemption of their circulation.

"SEC. 35. And be it further enacted, That no association shall make any loan or discount on the security of the shares of its own capital stock, nor be the purchaser or holder of any such shares, unless such security or purchase shall be necessary to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith; and stock so purchased or acquired shall, within six months from the time of its purchase, be sold or disposed of at public or private sale, in default of which a receiver may be appointed to close up the business of the association, according to the provisions of this act.

"SEC. 36. And be it further enacted, That no association shall at any time be indebted, or in any way liable, to an amount exceeding the amount of its capital stock at such time actually paid in and remaining undiminished by losses or otherwise, except on the following accounts, that is to say:

"First. On account of its notes of circulation.

"Second. On account of moneys deposited with, or collected by, such association.

"Third. On account of bills of exchange or drafts drawn against money actually on deposit to the credit of such association, or due thereto.

"Fourth. On account of liabilities to its stockholders for dividends and reserved profits.

"SEC. 37. And be it further enacted, That no association shall, either directly or indirectly, pledge or hypothecate any of its notes of circulation, for the purpose of procuring money to be paid in on its capital stock, or to be used in its banking operations, or otherwise; nor shall any association use its circulating notes, or any part thereof, in any manner or form, to create or increase its capital stock.

"SEC. 38. And be it further enacted, That no association, or any member thereof, shall, during the time it shall continue its banking operations, withdraw, or permit to be withdrawn, either in form of dividends or otherwise, any portion of its capital. And if losses shall at any time have been sustained by any such association equal to or exceeding its undivided profits then on hand, no dividend shall be made; and no dividend shall ever be made by any association, while it shall continue its banking operations, to an amount greater than its net profits then on hand, deducting therefrom its losses and bad debts. And all debts due to any association, on which interest is past due and unpaid for a period of six months, unless the same shall be well secured, and shall be in process of collection, shall be considered bad debts within the meaning of this act: Provided, That nothing in this section shall prevent the reduction of the capital stock of the association under the thirteenth section of this act.

"SEC. 40. And be it further enacted, That the president and cashier of every such association shall cause to be kept at all times a full and correct list of the names and residences of all the shareholders in the association, and the number of shares held by each, in the office where its business is transacted; and such list shall be subject to the inspection of all the shareholders and creditors of the association during business hours of each day in which business may be legally transacted; and a copy of such list, on the first Monday of January and July of each year, verified by the oath of such president or cashier, shall be transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency.

"SEC. 41. And be it further enacted, That the plates and special dies to be procured by the Comptroller of the Currency for the printing of such circulating notes shall remain under his control and direction, and the expenses necessarily incurred in executing the provisions of this act, respecting the procuring of such notes, and all other expenses of the bureau, shall be paid out of the proceeds of the taxes or duties now or hereafter to be assessed on the circulation, and collected from associations organized under this act; and such taxes or duties, imposed by Congress from time to time, shall be in lieu of all other taxes on such associations.

"SEC. 42. And be it further enacted, That any association may go into liquidation and be closed by the vote of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock. And whenever such vote shall be taken, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to cause notice of this fact to be certified, under the seal of the association, by its president or cashier, to the Comptroller of the Currency, and publication thereof to be made for a period of two months in a newspaper published in the city of New York, and also in a newspaper published in a city or town in which the association is located, and if no newspaper be there published, then in the newspaper published nearest thereto, that said association is closing up its affairs, and notifying the billholders and other creditors to present the notes of and other claims against the association for payment. And at any time after the expiration of one year from the time of the publication of such notice as aforesaid the said association may pay over to the Treasurer of the United States the amount of its outstanding notes in the lawful money of the United States, and take up the bonds which said association has on deposit with the Treasurer for the security of its circulating notes; which bonds shall be assigned to the bank in the manner specified in the nineteenth section of this act, and from that time the outstanding notes of said association shall be redeemed at the treasury of the United States, and the said association and the shareholders thereof shall be discharged from all liabilities therefor.

"SEC. 43. And be it further enacted, That the Treasurer, on receiving from an association lawful money for the payment and redemption of its outstanding notes, as provided for in the preceding section of this act, shall execute duplicate receipts therefor, one to the association and the other to the Comptroller of the Currency, stating the amount received by him, and the purpose for which it has been received, which amount shall be paid into the treasury of the United States, and placed to the credit of such association upon redemption account. And it shall be the duty of the Treasurer, whenever he shall redeem any of the notes of said association, to cause the same to be mutilated, and charged to the redemption account of said association; and all notes so redeemed by the Treasurer shall, every three months, be certified to and burned in the manner prescribed in the twenty-fourth section of this act.

"SEC. 44. And be it further enacted, That any bank incorporated by special law, or any banking institution organized under a general law of any State, may, by authority of this act, become a national association under its provisions, by the name prescribed in its organization certificate; and in such case the articles of association and the organization certificate required by this act may be executed by a majority of the directors of the bank or banking institution, and said certificate shall declare that the owners of two-thirds of the capital stock have authorized the directors to make such certificate and to change and convert the said bank or banking institution into a national association under this act. And a majority of the directors, after executing said articles of association and organization certificate, shall have power to execute all other papers, and to do whatever may be required to make its organization perfect and complete as a national association; and the directors aforesaid may be the directors of the association until others are elected or appointed in accordance with the provisions of this act; and any State bank which is a stockholder in any other bank, by authority of State laws, may continue to hold its stock, although either bank, or both, may be organized under and have accepted the provisions of this act. When the Comptroller shall give to such association a certificate, under his hand and official seal that the provisions of this act have been complied with, and that it is authorized to commence the business of banking under it, the association shall have the same powers and privileges, and shall be subject to the same duties, responsibilities, and rules, in all respects, except that the shares of stock may be for the same amount, each, as they were before the conversion, as is prescribed in this act for other associations organized under it, and shall be held and regarded as an association under this act: Provided, however, That no such association shall have a less capital than one hundred thousand dollars, nor less than two hundred thousand dollars if in a city of more than fifty thousand inhabitants: And provided, further, That any bank or banking association now organized in pursuance of the laws of any State under articles of association which prohibit specified changes therein, may be changed and converted into a national banking association, under the provisions of this act, without any such change in its articles of association as may be prohibited by the same, anything in this act to the contrary notwithstanding. And its directors at the time of such change may continue in office, and their successors may, from time to time, be elected or appointed in the manner provided by its articles of association.

"SEC. 45. And be it further enacted, That all associations under this act, when designated for that purpose by the Secretary of the Treasury, shall be depositories of public money, except receipts from customs, under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Secretary; and they may also be employed as financial agents of the government; and they shall perform all such reasonable duties, as depositories of public moneys and financial agents of the government, as may be required of them. And the Secretary of the Treasury shall require of the associations thus designated satisfactory security, by the deposit of United States bonds and otherwise, for the safe-keeping and prompt payment of the public money deposited with them, and for the faithful performance of their duties as financial agents of the government.

"SEC. 46. And be it further enacted, That if any such association shall at any time fail to redeem, in the lawful money of the United States, any of its circulating notes, when payment thereof shall be lawfully demanded, during the usual hours of business, at the office of such association, or at its place of redemption aforesaid, the holder may cause the same to be protested, in one package, by a notary public, unless the president or cashier of the association whose notes are presented for payment, or the president or cashier of the association at the place at which they are redeemable, shall offer to waive demand and notice of the protest, and shall, in pursuance of such offer, make, sign, and deliver to the party making such demand, an admission in writing, stating the time of the demand, the amount demanded, and the fact of the non-payment thereof; and such notary public, on making such protest, or upon receiving such admission, shall forthwith forward such admission or notice of protest to the Comptroller of the Currency. And after such default, and on examination of the facts by the Comptroller, and his notice to the association, it shall not be lawful for the association suffering the same to pay out any of its notes, discount any notes or bills, or otherwise prosecute the business of banking, except to receive and safely keep money belonging to it, and to deliver special deposits: Provided, however, That if satisfactory proof be produced to such notary public that the payment of any such notes is restrained by order of any court of competent jurisdiction, such notary public shall not protest the same; and when the holder of such notes shall cause more than one note or package to be protested on the same day, he shall not receive pay for more than one protest.

"SEC. 47. And be it further enacted, That on receiving notice that any such association has failed to redeem any of its circulating notes, as specified in the next preceding section, the Comptroller of the Currency, with the concurrence of the Secretary of the Treasury, may appoint a special agent, (of whose appointment immediate notice shall be given to such association,) who shall immediately proceed to ascertain whether such association has refused to pay its circulating notes, in the lawful money of the United States, when demanded as aforesaid, and report to the Comptroller the fact so ascertained; and if, from such protest or the report so made, the Comptroller shall be satisfied that such association has refused to pay its circulating notes as aforesaid, and is in default, he shall, within thirty days after he shall have received notice of such failure, declare the United States bonds and securities pledged by such association forfeited to the United States, and the same shall thereupon be forfeited accordingly. And thereupon the Comptroller shall immediately give notice, in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury shall, by general rules or otherwise, direct, to the holders of the circulating notes of such association, to present them for payment at the treasury of the United States, and the same shall be paid as presented in lawful money of the United States; whereupon said Comptroller may, in his discretion, cancel an equal amount of bonds pledged by such association, equal, at current market rates, not exceeding par, to the notes paid. And it shall be lawful for the Secretary of the Treasury, from time to time, to make such regulations respecting the disposition to be made of such circulating notes after presentation thereof for payment as aforesaid, and respecting the perpetuation of the evidence of the payment thereof, as may seem to him proper; but all such notes, on being paid, shall be cancelled. And for any deficiency in the proceeds of the bonds pledged by such association, when disposed of as hereinafter specified, to reimburse to the United States the amount so expended in paying the circulating notes of such association, the United States shall have a first and paramount lien upon all the assets of such association, and such deficiency shall be made good out of such assets in preference to any and all other claims whatsoever, except the necessary costs and expenses of administering the same.

"SEC. 48. And be it further enacted, That whenever the Comptroller shall become satisfied, as in the last preceding section specified, that any association has refused to pay its circulating notes as therein mentioned, he may, instead of cancelling the United States bonds pledged by such association, as provided in the next preceding section, cause so much of them as may be necessary to redeem the outstanding circulating notes of such association to be sold at public auction in the city of New York, after giving thirty days' notice of such sale to such association.

"SEC. 49. And be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the Currency may, if he shall be of opinion that the interests of the United States will be best promoted thereby, sell at private sale any of the bonds pledged by such association, and receive therefor either money or the circulating notes of such failing association: Provided, That no such bonds shall be sold by private sale for less than par, nor less than the market value thereof at the time of sale: And provided, further, That no sales of any such bonds, either public or private, shall be complete until the transfer thereof shall have been made with the formalities prescribed in this act.

"SEC. 50. And be it further enacted, That on becoming satisfied, as specified in this act, that any association has refused to pay its circulating notes as therein mentioned, and is in default, the Comptroller of the Currency may forthwith appoint a receiver, and require of him such bond and security as he shall deem proper, who, under the direction of the Comptroller, shall take possession of the books, records, and assets of every description of such association, collect all debts, dues, and claims belonging to such association, and, upon the order of a court of record of competent jurisdiction, may sell or compound all bad or doubtful debts, and, on a like order, sell all the real and personal property of such association, on such terms as the court shall direct; and such receiver shall pay over all money so made to the Treasurer of the United States, subject to the order of the Comptroller of the Currency, and also make report to the Comptroller of the Currency of all his acts and proceedings. The Comptroller shall thereupon cause notice to be given, by advertisement in such newspapers as he may direct, for three consecutive months, calling on all persons who may have claims against such association to present the same, and to make legal proof thereof. And from time to time the Comptroller, after full provision shall have been first made for refunding to the United States any such deficiency in redeeming the notes of such association as is mentioned in this act, shall make a ratable dividend of the money so paid over to him by such receiver on all such claims as may have been proved to his satisfaction or adjudicated in a court of competent jurisdiction; and from time to time, as the proceeds of the assets of such association shall be paid over to him, he shall make further dividends, as aforesaid, on all claims previously proved or adjudicated; and the remainder of such proceeds, if any, shall be paid over to the shareholders of such association, or their legal representatives, in proportion to the stock by them respectively held: Provided, however, That if such association against which proceedings have been so instituted, on account of any alleged refusal to redeem its circulating notes as aforesaid, shall deny having failed to do so, such association may, at any time within ten days after such association shall have been notified of the appointment of an agent, as provided in this act, apply to the nearest circuit, or district, or territorial court of the United States, to enjoin further proceedings in the premises; and such court, after citing the Comptroller of the Currency to show cause why further proceedings should not be enjoined, and after the decision of the court or finding of a jury that such association has not refused to redeem its circulating notes, when legally presented, in the lawful money of the United States, shall make an order enjoining the Comptroller, and any receiver acting under his direction, from all further proceedings on account of such alleged refusal.

"SEC. 51. And be it further enacted, That all fees for protesting the notes issued by any such banking association shall be paid by the person procuring the protest to be made, and such banking association shall be liable therefor; but no part of the bonds pledged by such banking association, as aforesaid, shall be applied to the payment of such fees. And all expenses of any preliminary or other examinations into the condition of any association shall be paid by such association; and all expenses of any receivership shall be paid out of the assets of such association before distribution of the proceeds thereof.

"SEC. 52. And be it further enacted, That all transfer of the notes, bonds, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt owing to any association, or of deposits to its credit; all assignments of mortgages, sureties on real estate, or of judgments or decrees in its favor; all deposits of money, bullion, or other valuable thing for its use, or for the use of any of its shareholders or creditors; and all payments of money to either, made after the commission of an act of insolvency, or in contemplation thereof, with a view to prevent the application of its assets in the manner prescribed by this act, or with a view to the preference of one creditor to another except in payment of its circulating notes, shall be utterly null and void.

"SEC. 53. And be it further enacted, That if the directors of any association shall knowingly violate, or knowingly permit any of the officers, agents, or servants of the association to violate, any of the provisions of this act, all the rights, privileges, and franchises of the association derived from this act shall be thereby forfeited. Such violation shall, however, be determined and adjudged by a proper circuit, district, or territorial court of the United States, before the association shall be declared dissolved. And in cases of such violation, every director who participated in or assented to the same shall be held liable in his personal and individual capacity for all damages which the association, its shareholders, or any other person, shall have sustained in consequence of such violation.

"SEC. 54. And be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approbation of the Secretary of the Treasury, as often as shall be deemed necessary or proper, shall appoint a suitable person or persons to make an examination of the affairs of every banking association, which person shall not be a director or other officer in any association whose affairs he shall be appointed to examine, and who shall have power to make a thorough examination into all the affairs of the association, and, in doing so, to examine any of the officers and agents thereof on oath; and shall make a full and detailed report of the condition of the association to the Comptroller. And the association shall not be subject to any other visitatorial powers than such as are authorized by this act, except such as are vested in the several courts of law and chancery. And every person appointed to make such examination shall receive for his services at the rate of five dollars for each day by him employed in such examination, and two dollars for every twenty-five miles he shall necessarily travel in the performance of his duty, which shall be paid by the association by him examined.

"SEC. 55. And be it further enacted, That every president, director, cashier, teller, clerk, or agent of any association, who shall embezzle, abstract, or wilfully misapply any of the moneys, funds, or credits of the association, or shall, without authority from the directors, issue or put in circulation any of the notes of the association, or shall, without such authority, issue or put forth any certificate of deposit, draw any order or bill of exchange, make any acceptance, assign any note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment, or decree, or shall make any false entry in any book, report, or statement of the association, with intent, in either case, to injure or defraud the association or any other company, body politic or corporate, or any individual person, or to deceive any officer of the association, or any agent appointed to examine the affairs of any such association, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by imprisonment not less than five nor more than ten years.

" SEC. 56. And be it further enacted, That all suits and proceedings arising out of the provisions of this act, in which the United States or its officers or agents shall be parties, shall be conducted by the district attorneys of the several districts, under the direction and supervision of the Solicitor of the Treasury.

" SEC. 57. And be it further enacted, That suits, actions, and proceedings against any association under this act, may be had in any circuit, district, or territorial court of the United States held within the district in which such association may be established; or in any State, county, or municipal court in the county or city in which said association is located, having jurisdiction in similar cases : Provided, however, That all proceedings to enjoin the Comptroller under this act shall be had in a circuit, district, or territorial court of the United States, held in the district in which the association is located.

" SEC. 58. And be it further enacted, That every person who shall mutilate, cut, deface, disfigure, or perforate with holes, or shall unite or cement together, or do any other thing to any bank bill, draft, note, or other evidence of debt issued by any such association, or shall cause or procure the same to be done, with intent to render such bank bill, draft, note, or other evidence of debt unfit to be reissued by said association, shall upon conviction forfeit fifty dollars to the association who shall be injured thereby, to be recovered by action in any court having jurisdiction.

" SEC. 59. And be it further enacted, That if any person shall falsely make, forge, or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be made, forged, or counterfeited, or willingly aid or assist in falsely making, forging, or counterfeiting, any note in imitation of, or purporting to be in imitation of, the circulating notes issued under the provisions of this act, or shall pass, utter, or publish any false, forged, or counterfeited note, purporting to be issued by any association doing a banking business under the provisions of this act, knowing the same to be falsely made, forged, or counterfeited, or shall falsely alter, or cause or procure to be falsely altered, or willingly aid or assist in falsely altering, any such circulating notes, issued as aforesaid, or shall pass, utter, or publish, or attempt to pass, utter, or publish, as true, any falsely altered or spurious circulating note issued, or purporting to have been issued, as aforesaid, knowing the same to be falsely altered or spurious, every such person shall be adjudged guilty of felony, and being thereof convicted by due course of law, shall be sentenced to be imprisoned and kept at hard labor for a period not less than five years nor more than fifteen years, and to be fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars.

" SEC. 60. And be it further enacted, That if any person shall make or engrave, or cause or procure to be made or engraved, or shall have in his custody or possession any plate, die, or block, after the similitude of any plate, die, or block, from which any circulating notes issued as aforesaid shall have been prepared or printed, with intent to use such plate, die, or block, or cause or suffer the same to be used, in forging or counterfeiting any of the notes issued as aforesaid, or shall have in his custody or possession any blank note or notes engraved and printed after the similitude of any notes issued as aforesaid, with intent to use such blanks, or cause or suffer the same to be used, in forging or counterfeiting any of the notes issued as aforesaid, or shall have in his custody or possession any paper adapted to the making of such notes, and similar to the paper upon which any such notes shall have been issued, with intent to use such paper, or cause or suffer the same to be used, in forging or counterfeiting any of the notes issued as aforesaid, every such person, being thereof convicted by due course of law, shall be sentenced to be imprisoned and kept to hard labor for a term not less than five or more than fifteen years, and fined in a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars.

"SEC. 61. And be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to report annually to Congress, at the commencement of its session—

"First. A summary of the state and condition of every association from whom reports have been received the preceding year, at the several dates to which such reports refer, with an abstract of the whole amount of banking capital returned by them, of the whole amount of their debts and liabilities, the amount of circulating notes outstanding, and the total amount of means and resources, specifying the amount of lawful money held by them at the times of their several returns, and such other information in relation to said associations as, in his judgment, may be useful.

"Second. A statement of the associations whose business has been closed during the year, with the amount of their circulation redeemed and the amount outstanding.

"Third. To suggest any amendment to the laws relative to banking by which the system may be improved, and the security of the bill-holders and depositors may be increased.

"Fourth. To report the names and compensation of the clerks employed by him, and the whole amount of the expenses of the banking department during the year. And such report shall be made by or before the first day of December in each year, and the usual number of copies for the use of the Senate and the House, and one thousand copies for the use of the department, shall be printed by the public printer and in readiness for distribution at the first meeting of Congress.

"SEC. 62. And be it further enacted, That the act entitled 'An act to provide a national currency, secured by a pledge of United States stocks, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof,' approved February twenty-fifth, eighteen hundred and sixty-three, is hereby repealed: Provided, That such repeal shall not affect any appointments made, acts done, or proceedings had, or the organization, acts, or proceedings of any association organized or in the process of organization under the act aforesaid: And provided, also, That all such associations so organized or in process of organization shall enjoy all the rights and privileges granted, and be subject to all the duties, liabilities, and restrictions imposed by this act, with the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency, may, in lieu of the name specified in their respective organization certificates, take any other name preferred by them and duly certified to the Comptroller without prejudice to any right acquired under this act, or under the act hereby repealed; but no change shall be made after six months from the passage of this act: Provided, also, That the circulation issued or to be issued by such association shall be considered as a part of the circulation provided for in this act.

"SEC. 63. And be it further enacted, That persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees, shall not be personally subject to any liabilities as stockholders, but the estates and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in said trust funds would be if they were respectively living and competent to act and hold the stock in their own names.

"SEC. 64. And be it further enacted, That Congress reserves the right at any time to amend, alter, or repeal this act."

Whereas, on the 8th of April, 1864, when the House of Representatives was in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, Alexander Long, a representative from the second district of Ohio, declared himself in favor of recognizing the independence and nationality of the so-called Confederacy, now in arms against the Union ; and whereas the said so-called Confederacy thus sought to be recognized and established on the ruins of a dissolved or destroyed Union has as its chief officers, civil and military, those who have added perjury to their treason, and who seek to obtain success for their paricidal efforts by the killing of the loyal soldiers of the nation, who are seeking to save it from destruction ; and whereas the oath required of all members, and taken by the said Alexander Long on the first day of the present Congress, declares "that I have voluntarily given no aid, countenance, counsel, or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility to the United States," thereby declaring that such conduct is regarded as inconsistent with membership in the Congress of the United States : Therefore,

Resolved, That Alexander Long, a representative from the second district of Ohio, having, on the 8th of April, 1864, declared himself in favor of recognizing the independence and nationality of the so-called Confederacy, now in arms against the Union, and thereby "given aid, countenance, and encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility to the United States," is hereby expelled.

Pending the question on agreeing thereto and during the debate thereon, Mr. Ellihu B. Washburne called Mr. Benjamin G. Harris to order for the following words just used by him in debate, viz : "The south asked you to let them live in peace. But no ; you said you would bring them into subjugation. That is not done yet ; and God Almighty grant that it never may be. I hope that you will never subjugate the south."

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Edward H. Rollins) sustained the said point of order.

And Mr. Harris thereupon took his seat.

After further debate,

On motion of Mr. Colfax,

Ordered, That the further consideration of the said preamble and resolution be postponed until Monday next, at 2 p. m.

Mr. Ellihu B. Washburne, as a question of privilege, submitted the following preamble and resolution, viz :

Whereas the Hon. Benjamin G. Harris, a member of the House of Representatives of the United States from the State of Maryland, has, upon this day, used the following language, to wit : "The south asked you to let them live in peace. But no ; you said you would bring them into subjection. That is not done yet ; and God Almighty grant that it never may be. I hope that you will never subjugate the south ;" and whereas such language is treasonable and a gross contempt of this House : Therefore, be it

Mr. Cravens submitted the following resolutions, viz:

Resolved, That in the present condition of the country, when the passions of the people are inflamed and their prejudices are excited, it is unwise and dangerous to attempt to alter or amend the Constitution of the United States; that ample power is contained within its limits as it now exists to protect and defend the national life, and the exercise of power not warranted by its provisions would be to enter the field of revolution, and dangerous to the liberties of the people, tending to the establishment of military despotism and the final overthrow of free government in America.

After the recess,

The House resumed the consideration of the said preamble and resolution.

After further debate,

Mr. Broomall proposed to submit the following amendment in the nature of a substitute for the same, viz:

Whereas Alexander Long, a representative from the second district of Ohio, by his open declarations in the national Capitol, and publications in the city of New York, has shown himself to be in favor of a recognition of the so-called confederacy now trying to establish itself upon the ruins of our country, thereby giving aid and comfort to the enemy in that destructive purpose—aid to avowed traitors, in erecting an illegal government within our borders—comfort to them by assurances of their success, and affirmations of the justice of their cause; and whereas such conduct is at the same time evidence of disloyalty and inconsistent with his oath of office and his duty as a member of this body: Therefore,

Resolved, That the said Alexander Long, a representative from the second district of Ohio, be, and he is hereby, declared to be an unworthy member of the House of Representatives.

Resolved, That the Speaker shall read these resolutions to the said Alexander Long during the session of the House.

The same having been read,

Mr. Eldridge made the point of order that the said amendment was out of order, on the ground that the words spoken by Mr. Long were not taken down in writing at the time of their utterance, nor was exception taken to them either in Committee of the Whole or in the House until after another member had spoken and other business had intervened.

And

Mr. Holman made the point of order that it was out of order because not germane to the original proposition.

The Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Edward H. Rollins) overruled the point of order, and decided that the amendment proposed was in order.

From this decision of the chair Mr. Eldridge appealed.

Pending which,

After further debate,

On motion of Mr. Holman, at 11 o'clock and 20 minutes p. m., the House adjourned.

THURSDAY, APRIL 14, 1864.

The House resumed the consideration of the preamble and resolution submitted on Saturday last by Mr. Colfax, in regard to Mr. Long, one of the representatives from the State of Ohio—the pending question being on the appeal taken from the decision of the Speaker pro tempore (Mr. Edward H. Rollins) that the amendment proposed to be submitted by Mr. Broomall was in order.

Whereas the President of the United States, in his message to Congress, December 3, 1861, used the following language: "I deem it of importance that the loyal regions of East Tennessee and western North Carolina should be connected with Kentucky and other faithful parts of the Union by railroad. I therefore recommend, as a military measure, that Congress provide for the construction of such road as speedily as possible. Kentucky, no doubt, will co-operate, and through her legislature make the most judicious selection of a line. The northern terminus must connect with some existing railroad, and whether the route shall be from Lexington or Nicholasville to Cumberland gap, or from Lebanon to the Tennessee line, in the direction of Knoxville, or on some still different route, can easily be determined. Kentucky and the general government co-operating, the work can be completed in a very short time; and when done, it will be not only of vast present usefulness, but also a valuable permanent improvement, worth its cost in all the future;" and whereas the wisdom of that recommendation and the absolute necessity for such road has been made manifest by the great difficulty and enormous cost in transporting army supplies, &c., from Cincinnati and the interior of Kentucky to Cumberland gap and East Tennessee; and whereas different routes have been surveyed and found practicable, and the legislature of Kentucky has resolved that a route crossing Cumberland river above the falls should be adopted: Therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee on Military Affairs inquire into the necessity and expediency of the construction of a railroad for military and other purposes, as recommended by the President in his message of December 3, 1861; and that they report by bill or otherwise.

After debate,

previous to May 1, 1858; the said Shirley to receive the same in full of his claim for $2,813 88 presented to the Committee of Accounts.

So the decision of the chair was sustained.

Mr. Fernando Wood also made the point of order that the bill must be first considered in Committee of the Whole, because it created new offices, and affixed salaries to the same, and thereby created a charge upon the people.

The Speaker overruled the said point of order, on the ground that the salaries created by the bill must be appropriated for by another bill, and that no appropriation is made therefor by the present bill.

From this decision of the Chair Mr. Wood appealed.

And the question being put, Shall the decision of the chair stand as the judgment of the House?

So the decision of the Chair was sustained.

Mr. Holman having proposed to renew the point of order just made on the suggestion that other sections of the bill than those already referred to contained an appropriation.

The Speaker decided that the said point of order could not be renewed, on the ground that such a practice would open the door to an indefinite number of appeals, and he referred to a decision in the 32d Congress in confirmation of his decision.

From this decision of the Chair Mr. Holman appealed.

And the question being put, Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the House?

It was decided in the affirmative.

So the decision of the Chair was sustained.

The House then proceeded to the consideration of the said bill, (H. R. 395.) pending the question on its engrossment,

After debate,

Mr. Hooper submitted an amendment thereto.

Pending which,

Mr. Hooper moved the previous question, and the House refused to second the same.

Mr. Fenton then moved the previous question on the said amendment.

Pending which,

Mr. Brooks moved, at 4 o'clock and 45 minutes p. m., that the House adjourn; which motion was disagreed to.

The question then recurring on the demand for the previous question, it was seconded and the main question ordered, and under the operation thereof the said amendment was agreed to.

Mr. Fenton submitted the following amendment, viz: Strike out all after line 9, to the end of section 41, and insert in lieu thereof: "And nothing in this act shall be construed to prevent the taxation by States of the capital stock of banks organized under this act, the same as the property of other moneyed corporations, for State or municipal purposes; but no State shall impose any tax upon such associations, or their capital, circulation, dividends, or business, at a higher rate of taxation than shall be imposed by such State upon the same amount of moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of such State: Provided, That no State tax shall be imposed on any part of the capital stock of such association invested in the bonds of the United States deposited as security for its circulation."

The same having been read,
